

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

TIARA YACHTS, INC.,

Case No. 1:22-cv-603

Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant,

Honorable Robert J. Jonker

Magistrate Judge Ray Kent

BLUE CROSS BLUE SHIELD OF MICHIGAN,

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff.

PLAINTIFF/COUNTER-DEFENDANT’S MOTION TO STRIKE CONFIDENTIALITY
DESIGNATIONS ON DEFENDANT/COUNTER-PLAINTIFF’S
DOCUMENT PRODUCTIONS

Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant Tiara Yachts, Inc. (“Plaintiff” or “Tiara Yachts”) respectfully requests an order pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(1) that compels Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan (“Defendant” or “Blue Cross”) to produce non-confidential versions of all documents previously produced in discovery. As further set forth in the accompanying brief in support, Blue Cross initially produced documents in this matter by improperly and indiscriminately labeled every single record as “confidential”. This includes documents that were already in the public domain or otherwise previously disclosed to Tiara Yachts, and could not possibly be confidential. After being confronted about its improper designations, Blue Cross elected to de-designate only a portion of documents, while failing to retract the improper confidentiality designations on the remainder of its production.

Overall, Blue Cross’s confidentiality designations do not meet the extremely high standard for sealing judicial records or otherwise keeping them from the public view. Cf. Shane Group, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 825 F.3d 299 (6th Cir. 2016). Under the Court’s qualified protective order (ECF No. 123, PageID.1958–59), the only information that can be labeled “confidential” is: (1) trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information, as such terms are used in Fed. R. of Civ. P. 26(c)(1)(G); or (2) personal information protected by HIPAA or other state or federal law, provided that the disclosing party (or some other third party) has made sufficient efforts to maintain confidentiality that are reasonable under the circumstances. None of the records produced by Blue Cross meet these criteria.

Pursuant to L. Civ. R. 7.1(d), Plaintiff’s counsel certifies that he has in good faith conferred with counsel for Blue Cross in an attempt to obtain concurrence by e-mail correspondence and through a phone conference on June 10, 2026, as well as through email communications that have continued until June 19, 2026. In these communications, Tiara Yachts detailed the numerous reasons why Blue Cross’s universal confidentiality designations were improper, and even provided specific examples of documents that do not qualify for confidentiality designations under Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c) or the Court’s qualified protective order (ECF No. 123). In response, Blue Cross has only partially agreed to the relief sought by retracting confidentiality designations for: (A) Tiara Yachts’ contracts with Blue Cross, (B) internal documents and communications pertaining to Tiara Yachts’ termination of Blue Cross, and (C) external communications between Blue Cross and Tiara Yachts. For all remaining documents Blue Cross has refused to remove its improper confidentiality designations. Accordingly, Plaintiff respectfully requests that this Court strike the remaining confidentiality designations on Blue Cross’s document production, and order Blue Cross to produce non-confidential versions of these records.

Respectfully submitted,

I. INTRODUCTION

Blue Cross has abused the Court’s qualified protective order (ECF No. 123) (the “Protective Order”) by indiscriminately stamping every single document in its production as “confidential” without any legitimate justification for doing so. The documents that Blue Cross has swept under this blanket designation—more than 4,500 pages worth—include publicly filed court records, exhibits already attached to Tiara Yachts’ complaint, routine contract documents produced without restriction in other cases, and ten-year-old customer information that is required by federal law to be publicly disclosed. None of these materials constitute trade secrets, confidential commercial information, or protected health information within the meaning of the Protective Order, and Blue Cross has offered no rationale for designating them as such. Indeed, even after being alerted of these improper designations, Blue Cross only elected to de-designate a subset of records, leaving the vast majority of its production still labeled “confidential”.

For these reasons, Tiara Yachts respectfully moves this Court to strike the remaining confidentiality designations within Blue Cross’s document production, and to compel Blue Cross to produce non-confidential versions of these records. The Sixth Circuit has long recognized a “strong presumption in favor of openness” as to court records, and the burden of overcoming that presumption is “a heavy one” that falls squarely on Blue Cross. Shane Group, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 825 F.3d 299, 305 (6th Cir. 2016). Blue Cross has not even attempted to rebut the presumption in favor of disclosure, let alone carry its burden. Instead, its sole rationale for maintaining the designations is the conclusory assertion that de-designation would be “unreasonable.” Because Blue Cross’s wholesale confidentiality designations are unsupported by any compelling justification, contravene the express terms of the Protective Order, and cause concrete prejudice to Tiara Yachts in the prosecution of its claims, the Court should grant this motion in its entirety.

II. BACKGROUND

A. TIARA YACHTS' LAWSUIT.

This case concerns Blue Cross's concerted and systematic efforts to defraud Tiara Yachts and conceal evidence of doing so. Tiara Yachts maintains a self-funded employee welfare plan (the "Plan") to pay healthcare costs for its employees and their dependents. See Compl. (ECF No. 1, PageID.1-23). Generally, with a self-funded plan, the self-funded entity pays every dollar of claims incurred by an employee or enrollee. Id. ¶¶ 11-12 (PageID.3). To self-fund, the entity often contracts with an administrator to process and pay the claims for a fee. Id.

Per an Administrative Services Contract, Tiara Yachts deposited Plan assets into a Blue Cross controlled account for claims payment ("Plan Assets"), leaving Blue Cross with discretionary authority to interpret Plan terms, pay or not pay claims, determine the payment amount, and make any payment from the Plan's Assets. Id. ¶¶15-21 (PageID.3). This authority gave Blue Cross discretionary authority and control over Plan Assets and administration, rendering it an ERISA fiduciary. Id., ¶¶24-26, PageID.4; Tiara Yachts, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 138 F.4th 457, 466 (6th Cir. 2025).

In exercising these fiduciary duties, Blue Cross squandered Plan Assets by systematically overpaying claims. Worse, Blue Cross meant to profit, and in fact did profit, "from its mismanagement by implementing a program through which it caught overpayments, clawed them back, and kept a portion of those 'savings' for itself" (i.e., its "Shared Savings Program" or "SSP"). See Tiara Yachts, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 138 F.4th 457, 460 (6th Cir. 2025); see generally Compl. (ECF No. 1, PageID.1-23).

But Blue Cross’s misconduct extends well beyond the SSP. As detailed in the Complaint, the overpayments that fueled the SSP were themselves the product of a known systems defect called “flip logic”—an intentional design in Blue Cross’s NASCO claims processing platform, in place since 1997, that caused non-participating provider claims to be processed and paid at full charge rather than at the lower host-plan rate required by Tiara Yachts’ elected benefits. Compl. ¶¶ 48–55 (ECF No. 1, PageID.7-9). When a Blue Cross senior account manager discovered the defect and raised it internally, Blue Cross’s leadership directed him to “stand down” and ultimately terminated his employment. Id. ¶¶ 37–47, 64 (PageID.6-7, 9). Blue Cross compounded these failures by consistently paying claims plagued by a range of billing and coding deficiencies—including unbundling, upcoding, and medically unlikely charges—in violation of industry standards and its own policies. Id. ¶¶ 103–108 (PageID.16-17). And throughout, Blue Cross maintained exclusive control over Tiara Yachts’ claims data, effectively preventing Tiara Yachts from independently identifying the scope of the improper payments. Id. ¶¶ 86–92 (PageID.12-13). The documents at issue in this motion bear directly on each of these categories of misconduct.

On these grounds, Tiara Yachts’ Complaint asserts two claims: (1) Blue Cross breached its ERISA fiduciary duties; and (2) Blue Cross engaged in transactions prohibited by ERISA. Compl. (ECF No. 1, PageID.1-23).

B. TIARA YACHTS’ DISCOVERY REQUESTS AND THE QUALIFIED PROTECTIVE ORDER.

On August 8, 2025 and February 2, 2026, Tiara Yachts served two respective sets of document requests on Blue Cross. See Ex. A (Discovery Requests – August 2025); Ex. B (Discovery Requests – February 2, 2026). Each of these requests sought highly relevant information within Blue Cross’s possession, custody, and control that go squarely to the heart of Tiara Yachts' claims. In relevant part, the document requests largely fall within the following categories:

- Claims data: A complete set of Tiara Yachts' and its Plan's claims data and the data dictionaries needed to read it (RFP Nos. 1–2).
- Provider disputes, policies, and training: Routine communications with providers about disputed amounts, along with Blue Cross's written policies, practices, systems, and employee training for identifying excessive, duplicative, or improper claims (RFP Nos. 3–5).
- Internal investigations and related communications: Internal emails and documents concerning Dennis Wegner's previously raised concerns to Blue Cross's leadership; any internal investigations or communications among identified Blue Cross personnel regarding such concerns; and any directives instructing Wegner to cease investigating (RFP Nos. 6–8).
- System design, NASCO flip logic, and customer disclosures: Standard manuals and guides describing how Blue Cross's systems process claims (including its NASCO "flip logic" program); materials from Blue Cross "workgroups" investigating any claim system issues, including as applied to Tiara Yachts; any cost/benefit analyses; system-change histories; or disclosures to self-funded customers, including Tiara Yachts, about issues with Blue Cross's systems (RFP Nos. 9–13).
- Rule 26 documents: All documents identified in Blue Cross's initial disclosures (RFP No. 14).
- Provider arrangements and Inter-Plan activity: The fee schedules or negotiated agreements Blue Cross had with providers who submit claims to Tiara Yachts' Plan, and any Inter-Plan Provider Investigation Requests exchanged between Blue Cross and another Blue Cross related entity (i.e., the host plan) (RFP Nos. 15–16).
- Account-management communications: Ordinary account-team communications and the referenced script used with customer groups concerning any Blue Cross system issues (RFP Nos. 17–18).
- Payment Integrity and Shared Savings Program: Design and operation materials, Blue Cross's decision-making for SSP, Tiara Yachts-specific communications about scope, fees, and disclosures, and calculations of any claimed savings or avoided costs, including methodology and retained amounts (RFP Nos. 19–22).

On January 13, 2026, the Court entered the Protective Order governing the confidentiality of records and discovery at issue in this matter. Under the Protective Order, a party may only designate documents as “Confidential” if it “reasonably and in good faith believes” contains either: (1) a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information, as those terms are used in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(c)(1)(G); or (2) personal information protected by HIPAA or other state or federal law, provided that the “Protected Person” or third party “has made sufficient efforts to maintain confidentiality that are reasonable under the circumstances.” See ECF No. 123, PageID.1957. The Protective Order further specifies that the protections it confers do not apply to any information that is in the public domain at the time of production or disclosure—or that subsequently enters the public domain—with or through the consent of the designating Protected Person, so long as the public dissemination does not involve a violation of the Protective Order. Id. at PageID.1955.

Critically, the “confidential” designation standard is not self-executing or unbounded; it requires both a reasonable, good-faith belief that the information falls within one of the enumerated substantive categories and that the designating party has taken reasonable steps to maintain the information’s confidential character. Id. at PageID.1957. When the designating party cannot satisfy either prong of the “confidentiality” standard—because the material does not constitute a trade secret, confidential commercial information, or protected personal information, or because reasonable efforts to maintain confidentiality have not been undertaken—the designation is subject to challenge under Paragraph C.4 of the Order, which permits any party acting reasonably and in good faith to dispute the designation, notify the designating party in writing, and ultimately seek de-designation from the Court. Id. at PageID.1966–67.

For any such challenge, the Protective Order provides that the designating party bears the burden of establishing the appropriate level of confidentiality, and that a challenging party may contest whether the material objectively qualifies for that designation. Id.

C. BLUE CROSS'S SYSTEMIC CONFIDENTIALITY DESIGNATIONS.

In response to Tiara Yachts' document requests, Blue Cross produced approximately 950 documents (BCBSM-Tiara_000001 through BCBSM-Tiara_004513) that include, among other records: (A) Tiara Yachts' contracts and communications with Blue Cross; (B) internal Blue Cross communications that directly mention and concern Tiara Yachts; (C) other communications (both with Tiara Yachts and other parties) that directly mention and concern Tiara Yachts; (D) documents and communications concerning Blue Cross's customers from almost ten years ago who, like Tiara Yachts, were subjected to Blue Cross's "flip logic"; and (E) internal communications regarding Blue Cross's "flip logic" program. None of the documents include any "trade secret" or other "confidential research, development, or commercial information," nor do any include personal information protected by HIPPA or other state or federal law. To the contrary, many of the records—such as Tiara Yachts' own contract with Blue Cross, or documents that identify Blue Cross's customers subject to the "flip logic" program—are already in the public domain or otherwise contain publicly available information.

Notwithstanding the fact none of Blue Cross's documents contain any information covered by the Protective Order, Blue Cross indiscriminately marked every single document in its production as "confidential," thereby foreclosing the discovery from public disclosure and other use throughout these proceedings.

On or about June 8, 2026, counsel for Tiara Yachts conferred with Blue Cross's counsel to request a retraction of the improper confidentiality designations. In response, Blue Cross agreed to voluntarily de-designate: (1) certain contract documents; (2) certain internal documents and communications related to Tiara Yachts' termination and settlement; and (3) certain external communications. However, without any further explanation, Blue Cross simply contended that the request to remove confidentiality designations on all remaining records was "unreasonable".

As further set forth below, each of Blue Cross's confidentiality designations are categorically improper and contrary to the express terms of the Protective Order. Accordingly, Tiara Yachts requests that each of the remaining confidentiality designations be stricken.

III. ARGUMENT

A. THE PRESUMPTION OF PUBLIC ACCESS TO COURT RECORDS WEIGHS IN FAVOR OF DE-DESIGNATING BLUE CROSS'S RECORDS AS "CONFIDENTIAL".

Because documents bearing a "confidential" designation under the Protective Order cannot be filed with the Court or otherwise made part of the judicial record without first obtaining an order to seal, the propriety of Blue Cross's confidentiality designations is properly measured against the backdrop of the exacting standards that govern sealing of court records. See ECF No. 123, PageID.1969–70 ("This order does not authorize the filing of any documents under seal. Documents may be sealed only if authorized by statute or by order of the Court for good cause shown."). Those standards—rooted in the public's right of access to judicial proceedings—demonstrate that Blue Cross's blanket designations cannot be sustained.

The Sixth Circuit has long recognized a "strong presumption in favor of openness" as to court records. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. F.T.C., 710 F.2d 1165, 1179 (6th Cir. 1983). The burden of overcoming that presumption is borne by the party that seeks to seal them, and "[t]he burden is a heavy one[.]" Shane Group, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 825 F.3d 299, 305 (6th Cir. 2016); see also ECF No. 123, PageID.1956, 67 (stating that the designating party "shall bear the burden and expense of seeking protection of its Confidential Information[.]" and that "[t]he burden of establishing the appropriate level of confidentiality shall be on the Party making the designation.”). Indeed, “[o]nly the most compelling reasons can justify non-disclosure of judicial records.” In re Knoxville News–Sentinel Co., 723 F.2d 470, 476 (6th Cir. 1983). Moreover, the greater the public interest in the litigation’s subject matter, the greater the showing necessary to overcome the presumption of access. Shane Group, 825 F.3d at 305. For example, in class actions or cases that concern the public at large, the standards for denying public access to the record “should be applied . . . with particular strictness.” Id. (internal citation omitted).

Even when a party can show a compelling reason why certain documents or portions thereof should be sealed, the seal itself must be narrowly tailored to serve that reason. Id. (citing Press–Enter. Co. v. Superior Court of California, Riverside Cnty., 464 U.S. 501, 509–11 (1984)). The proponent of sealing therefore must “analyze in detail, document by document, the propriety of secrecy, providing reasons and legal citations.” Id. at 305–06 (internal citation omitted).

Similarly, Courts that choose to seal court records must set forth specific findings and conclusions “which justify nondisclosure to the public.” Brown & Williamson, 710 F.2d at 1176; see also Beauchamp v. Fed. Home Loan Mortg. Corp., No 15-6067, 2016 WL 3671629, at *5 (6th Cir. July 11, 2016) (stating that compelling reasons and a narrowly tailored seal are necessary prerequisites to seal court records). A court’s obligation to explain the basis for sealing court records is “independent of whether anyone objects to it,” and a court’s failure to set forth those reasons—as to why the interests in support of nondisclosure are compelling, why the interests supporting access are less so, and why the seal itself is no broader than necessary—is itself grounds to vacate an order to seal. Shane Group, 825 F.3d at 306.

Here, Blue Cross has entirely failed to overcome this presumption in favor of open discovery and disclosure. In fact, it has failed to provide any justification at all for its confidentiality designations. To date, Blue Cross’s best rationale in support of its current designations is that it would be “unreasonable” to de-designate the documents. Clearly, such rationale does not rise to the level of “good cause” for shielding discovery materials from disclosure. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c). Nor does it qualify as a trade secret or any other confidential research, development, or similar information covered by the Protective Order. ECF No. 123, PageID.1957 (setting forth criteria for confidentiality designations). For these reasons, the Court should strike Blue Cross’s confidentiality designations and compel Blue Cross to produce non-confidential versions of these same records.

B. BLUE CROSS HAS FAILED TO MEET ITS BURDEN OF ESTABLISHING THAT ANY OF ITS RECORDS ARE “CONFIDENTIAL”.

Presumptions aside, the burden of establishing confidentiality falls squarely on Blue Cross. ECF No. 123, PageID.1956, 67 (stating that the designating party “shall bear the burden and expense of seeking protection of its Confidential Information[,]” and that “[t]he burden of establishing the appropriate level of confidentiality shall be on the Party making the designation.”). Here, Blue Cross has wholly failed to meet this burden.

Rather than engaging in the document-by-document analysis that the Protective Order requires, Blue Cross designated every single document in its production—Bates-numbered BCBSM-Tiara 000001 through BCBSM-Tiara 004513—as “Confidential.” Not one document in Blue Cross’s production was left undesignated. This wholesale stamping of more than 4,500 pages of documents constitutes precisely the kind of indiscriminate, blanket confidentiality designation that courts in this Circuit have routinely condemned. See Shane Group, 825 F.3d at 305–06 (emphasizing that the proponent of sealing must “analyze in detail, document by document, the propriety of secrecy, providing reasons and legal citations.”).

The absurdity of Blue Cross’s approach is laid bare by the nature of the documents it designated: Blue Cross stamped as “Confidential” the exact documents that Tiara Yachts attached as exhibits to its publicly filed Complaint; court filings such as the Wegner complaint, which have always been part of the public record; routine contract documents (ASCs, amendments, BDDs) that have been produced without confidentiality designations in other Blue Cross litigation; and Blue Cross documents that were created for external distribution. No reasonable litigant acting in good faith could conclude that already-public court filings or documents attached to a publicly filed complaint constitute “trade secrets or other confidential research, development, or commercial information” within the meaning of Rule 26(c)(1)(G). Nor do any of the documents produced by Blue Cross fall under the auspice of “Protected Health Information.”

The indiscriminate character of Blue Cross’s designations is most starkly illustrated by the documents for which no conceivable basis for confidentiality exists. See Ex. C (Example Confidential Designations).¹ Blue Cross stamped “Confidential” on BCBSM-Tiara_001826—a bare calendar appointment scheduling a routine “S2 ACE Report Meeting”, containing nothing more than a date, time, and list of attendees. It likewise designated BCBSM-Tiara_002047, an email chain between Blue Cross and Tiara Yachts’ own benefits administrator concerning whether a $624 Mary Free Bed invoice had been received and processed—a routine billing inquiry that Blue Cross sent to Tiara Yachts in the ordinary course of business and that Tiara Yachts already possesses. Blue Cross even designated as “Confidential” BCBSM-Tiara_001172 through 001177—the Wegner complaint, a publicly filed pleading in the Wayne County Circuit Court (Case No. 19-001808-CD) that has been part of the public record since February 7, 2019, and that Tiara Yachts itself cited in its own Complaint in this action. BCBSM-Tiara_001610 is likewise a document that Tiara Yachts attached as an exhibit to its publicly filed Complaint in this very case—yet Blue Cross maintains its “Confidential” designation to this day. No reasonable litigant, exercising the good faith required by the Protective Order, could conclude that meeting invitations, routine billing correspondence already known to the opposing party, or documents long available on a public court docket constitute “trade secrets or other confidential research, development, or commercial information” within the meaning of Rule 26(c)(1)(G).

Beyond these facially absurd designations, Blue Cross also stamped “Confidential” on documents that it created specifically for wide external distribution. BCBSM-Tiara_001209 through 001210 are Blue Cross’s own “ASC Shared Savings | Internal Sales FAQs”—a document designed to be shared with Blue Cross’s entire ASC customer base in one-on-one presentations, and which Blue Cross’s own internal communications confirm was intended for dissemination at “Agent Grand Slam” events, through customer-facing marketing materials, and via Field Alerts to external agents. Similarly, BCBSM-Tiara_004208 and 004236 are internal email chains discussing the “flip logic” defect and attaching spreadsheets identifying affected customer groups—communications that go to the very heart of Tiara Yachts’ claims in this litigation and that Blue Cross has shielded from scrutiny without any articulated justification. These documents do not contain trade secrets or protected health information; they contain evidence of the systemic claims-processing failures that Blue Cross seeks to hide behind a wall of improper confidentiality designations.

A final example of Blue Cross’s improper confidentiality designations includes documents and communications that identify Blue Cross’s customers, which date back almost one decade. Again, under the Protective Order, a designation is proper only where the designating party “reasonably and in good faith believes” the material contains any (1) trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information, as such terms are used in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(c)(1)(G), or (2) personal information protected by HIPAA or other state or federal law. The identity of Blue Cross’s employer-group customers satisfies neither prong. These customers are not trade secrets or confidential commercial information because they are not secret at all—employer-group customers routinely and publicly disclose their relationship with Blue Cross by issuing insurance cards to employees, identifying their carrier to prospective hires, and most critically, disclosing their insurance arrangements on Form 5500 filings with the U.S. Department of Labor as required by ERISA. See Ex. D (Exemplary Blue Cross Form 5500’s). Information that is required by law to be publicly filed cannot, by definition, constitute a “trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information” under Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c)(1)(G). Nor does the identity of Blue Cross’s customer constitute “personal information protected by HIPAA or other state or federal law” within the meaning of the Protective Order’s second prong, as the names of employer groups that contract with Blue Cross for health coverage are not individually identifiable health information as defined in 45 C.F.R. § 160.103.

To the contrary, companies that use Blue Cross as their insurance carrier do not keep that relationship secret—they distribute insurance cards to their employees, and they disclose their carrier to prospective employees. Even more critically, these companies are required by federal law to identify their insurance carrier on Form 5500 Annual Returns filed with the Department of Labor under ERISA §§ 104 and 6058(a) of the Internal Revenue Code. Those filings are open to public inspection and clearly identify Blue Cross as the carrier by name. Blue Cross itself even lists some of its customers (such as General Motors) publicly, through its website and elsewhere. See, e.g., <https://www.bcbsm.com/gmpln/index/>. These public disclosures directly foreclose Blue Cross’s ability to label the records as “confidential.” See ECF No. 123, PageID.1955 (“[T]he protections conferred by this Protective Order do not apply to any information that is in the public domain . . .”).

Blue Cross bears the burden of justifying each confidentiality designation, and it has failed to carry that burden for its entire document production. The Protective Order expressly provides that a party challenging a designation “may challenge . . . whether the material objectively qualifies for that designation,” and Blue Cross must demonstrate that it does. When confronted with Tiara’s challenge, Blue Cross’s counsel conceded only that certain narrow categories of documents would be “voluntarily de-designat[ed]” while maintaining confidentiality designations over all remaining documents without any specific basis for doing so. This piecemeal retreat, while simultaneously refusing to justify the remaining designations, confirms that Blue Cross never performed the good-faith, document-by-document analysis the Protective Order demands. Where, as here, the designating party reflexively (and universally) applies a confidentiality designation rather than through the exercise of reasoned judgment, the designation must be removed. The Court should therefore order Blue Cross to produce its responsive documents without confidentiality designations.

C. BLUE CROSS’S CONFIDENTIALITY DESIGNATIONS PREJUDICE TIARA YACHTS.

Blue Cross’s blanket confidentiality designations cause concrete and ongoing prejudice to Tiara Yachts in the prosecution of its claims. By stamping every one of the more than 4,500 documents in its production as “confidential,” Blue Cross has effectively forced Tiara Yachts to treat the entirety of the documentary record in this case as restricted—thereby limiting Tiara Yachts’ ability to share critical evidence with its own client representatives and consulting experts without first obtaining executed confidentiality agreements, restricting its capacity to use the produced documents in related proceedings or in communications with potential witnesses, and imposing the burden and expense of filing separate motions to seal each time it needs to reference any of Blue Cross's documents in a court filing. These restrictions are particularly injurious here because Blue Cross's internal communications about the flip-logic program—a central issue in this litigation, and one that affects the public at large—are among the documents swept up in Blue Cross's designations, hampering Tiara Yachts' ability to develop, present, and support its claims regarding Blue Cross's systematic misprocessing of Tiara Yachts' health insurance claims.

The confidentiality designations also impose an administrative burden on Tiara Yachts' counsel, who must track every individual to whom Confidential Information has been disclosed and maintain records sufficient to identify all such persons and the specific materials shared with each—an obligation the Protective Order imposes on any Receiving Party. When these onerous obligations are multiplied across more than 4,500 pages of documents—none of which contain legitimate trade secrets or confidential commercial information—the prejudice to Tiara Yachts is manifest. Blue Cross should not be permitted to weaponize the Protective Order's confidentiality provisions to impede Tiara Yachts' prosecution of its claims, and the Court should strip the improper designations to ensure that Tiara Yachts can litigate this matter on a level playing field. For these reasons, the Court should grant Tiara Yachts' motion and strike all of Blue Cross's confidentiality designations.

IV. CONCLUSION

The heavy burden of hiding legal proceedings from public scrutiny falls squarely on Blue Cross, and Blue Cross has failed to meet it. There are no “compelling reasons” for sealing Blue Cross's internal email discussing Blue Cross's flip logic, nor is there any reason for maintaining publicly available customer information as confidential. Accordingly, the Court should strike the confidentiality designations on the entirety of Blue Cross's document productions, and order Blue Cross to produce non-confidential versions of these same records.
