RULES

13	Local Rule 37–2.2.....	11
----	------------------------	----

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 The government's Ex Parte Application for a Temporary Stay of Motion to 3 Compel Discovery Pending Issuance of Rulings ("Motion to Stay") improperly 4 seeks to prevent United from obtaining crucial information in the government's own 5 files. This is not the first time the government has sought to curtail United's right to 6 defend itself. But it is the first time the government has invoked the extraordinary 7 remedy of seeking ex parte relief. The application should be denied because the 8 government is: (a) misusing the ex parte process; (b) improperly asserting privilege 9 over 21,000 documents; and (c) flouting the Court's directives that the parties must 10 proceed with discovery notwithstanding the filing of motions.¹

11 There is no emergency here. The government could have filed this motion 12 months ago. During a hearing on August 16, this Court specifically told the 13 government that, if it believed a stay was necessary to resolve certain issues prior to 14 producing records it had already collected, "that Stay Motion needed to be filed a 15 long time ago." The government also could have filed the motion today and duly 16 noticed it with a hearing date before November 6, the date on which United noticed 17 the motion to compel that prompted this ex parte application. Or it could have filed 18 the motion today and sought an expedited briefing schedule. Its decision, instead, 19 to force United and this Court to address the issue within a matter of hours is 20 inexcusable.

21 The government insists that United is to blame for this emergency application, 22 but nothing could be further from the truth. United's attempt to challenge the 23 government's improper privilege assertion over 21,000 documents in the 24 government's possession that corroborate United's theory of the case is not a new 25 issue. United has tried to resolve this issue with the government for nearly 4 months.
 26 It was not until the government abruptly reneged on an agreement, described further 27

28 ¹ United reserves the right to move for sanctions if the government engages in such abusive litigation conduct again in the future.

1 below, that United decided to file a motion to compel. Even then, the government 2 opted to proceed ex parte a full five days after receiving United's portion of a joint 3 stipulation underlying United's motion to compel, while failing to provide any 4 legitimate justification for the delay. The feigned urgency here is from the 5 government, not United.

6 The government also fails to show irreparable harm. The only hardship the 7 government identifies is that it will be forced to complete its part of a joint 8 stipulation—an ordinary part of litigation a case that is hardly the kind of harm that 9 requires emergency relief.

10 And even if that did constitute real harm, it is entirely harm of the 11 government's own making. To invoke the deliberative process privilege, the 12 government should have conferred with CMS months ago in order to ensure that the 13 documents were in fact protected by that privilege. If it had done that work when it 14 was supposed to do so, then completing its part of the joint stipulation would be easy 15 today. If, on the other hand, the harm is that the government has not yet conferred 16 with CMS to ensure that the documents all were protected by the privilege, then the 17 government has failed to follow the applicable law and, indeed, has misled United 18 and this Court.

19 The government represented to United and this Court in August that the 20 process of curing its deficient privilege assertions was underway and that it was 21 working with CMS to provide an agency declaration by the end of September. On 22 numerous occasions, the government agreed to provide both the joint stipulation and 23 an agency declaration by September 28—before abruptly reneging on that 24 agreement on September 24.

25 It certainly is possible that the reason the government changed its mind at the 26 last minute is that, once again, it cannot secure from CMS the factual assertions it 27 needs here. This time, it may be unable to persuade any agency representative to 28 support the government's unsupported blanket assertion of privilege over 21,000 documents spanning decades.² At any rate, at the end of the day, one of two things is true: either DOJ already has done the work, and its claims of hardship are meritless (and are instead strategic), or DOJ has not done this work despite the fact that it should have. In either case, emergency relief in the government's favor is hardly necessary or appropriate.

Finally, the evidence the government is withholding is directly relevant to critical issues in this case. The government is trying to shield documents from view because the limited evidence United has been able to obtain thus far supports United's belief that CMS officials indeed agree with United's theories and defenses. Contrary to the government's mischaracterizations, the evidence being withheld by the government goes to factual questions that are at the heart of the three remaining claims in this case. The documents are relevant to a host of crucial issues, including to show that: (1) CMS did not pay by mistake; (2) CMS officials themselves believe that conducting one-way looks is proper; (3) United did not receive an overpayment; (4) United was not unjustly enriched; (5) United did not knowingly and improperly retain an overpayment; (6) United's alleged failure to delete codes did not materially impact CMS's decision to continue paying and contracting with United; (7) the meaning of the ambiguous contractual and regulatory provisions on which the government relies; (8) United's position was both subjectively and objectively reasonable; and (9) damages.

For these reasons, the Court should deny the Motion to Stay.

II. PROCEDURAL & FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Despite having United's first document requests since August 2017, the government has produced only approximately 47,600 documents, yet it has withheld

² After Judge Fitzgerald dismissed three of the four False Claims Act claims in this case, the government was forced to concede that it could not allege that the attestations were material to CMS's payment decision, presumably because CMS would not support that allegation.

1 as privileged over 25,200 documents. See Ex.³ A, United’s Portion of the Joint 2 Stipulation Regarding United’s Notice of Mot. & Mot. to Compel the United States 3 to Produce Documents (“United’s Motion to Compel”) at 9. The government is 4 withholding over approximately 21,400 solely on the basis of the deliberative 5 process privilege—and withholding in full approximately 95% of those documents.
 6 Id. The government grouped these documents into incredibly broad categories and 7 often used identical descriptions for literally thousands of documents that span over 8 a decade. See, e.g., id. at 9–11. None of the descriptions provided by the government 9 adequately supports its assertions of the deliberative process. See id. at 18-26.
 10 Indeed, many of the document descriptions are so deficient that it is virtually 11 impossible to determine what the document might be.

12 United sent a letter to the government on June 15, 2018 that, among other 13 things, detailed the deficiencies in the government’s privilege assertions and 14 expressed concern that lawyers at the Department of Justice had made the assertions 15 without any input from CMS—a concern that the Department of Justice still has 16 failed to address. See Ex. A, United’s Mot. to Compel at 12, 23–24. United 17 requested that the government revise its privilege logs to provide the requisite level 18 of detail to assess the government’s assertions, and to provide a formal claim of 19 privilege by an appropriate agency official who had personally reviewed the relevant 20 documents—as required for a proper assertion of the narrow, qualified deliberative 21 process privilege. See, e.g., id. at 12, 18–20. The government refused to address 22 any of the deficiencies that United identified, instead demanding that United revise 23 its own privilege logs first—exactly the type of “tit-for-tat” discovery that this Court 24 made clear is improper. Id. at 12.

25 During a July 30 meet and confer, United committed to revising its privilege 26 logs. Id. Yet the government still refused to address its deficient privilege assertions

28 ³ Citations to “Ex.” materials refer to exhibits to the Declaration of Abid R. Qureshi filed herewith.

1 and instead claimed that it needed to review United’s revised privilege logs before 2 determining whether or how to revise its own privilege logs. Id. United also 3 reiterated its concern that lawyers from the Department of Justice had asserted the 4 deliberative process privilege without first consulting CMS. Id. The government 5 failed, yet again, to address that issue.

6 Because of the government’s continued refusal to take any action to fix its 7 deficient privilege logs or commit to providing an agency declaration—as well as 8 the government’s unjustified and sudden refusal to continue producing privilege 9 logs, despite the parties’ agreement to do so monthly—United sought an informal 10 discovery conference before this Court. Id. at 13. During the August 16 conference, 11 in response to the government’s argument that it should be excused from complying 12 with discovery obligations that relate to issues before Judge Fitzgerald in pending 13 motions, this Court expressly told the government that “if it was a situation where 14 you knew that you were going to need a stay until certain fundamental issues were 15 resolved, that Stay Motion needed to be filed a long time ago.” See Ex. C, Tr. of 16 Aug. 16, 2018 Hr’g at 1628 (lines 16–18) (emphasis added). It is remarkable, to say 17 the least, that the government is seeking emergency relief on the same basis 45 days 18 later.

19 The government later informed United that, at some undetermined time in the 20 future, it would provide an agency declaration that purportedly would “perfect” its 21 privilege assertions. Ex. A, United’s Mot. to Compel at 13. The government 22 provided no meaningful detail about the contents of the declaration, and it refused 23 to share the categories it intended to use—despite the Court’s recommendation that 24 the parties develop mutually-agreeable categories. Id. On August 27, the 25 government finally committed to providing an agency declaration by the end of 26 September—nearly 3.5 months after United first requested such a declaration. Id.

27 United then asked the government to share an excerpt of the declaration to 28 allow United to assess whether it would cure the deficiencies with the government’s

1 privilege assertions. The government refused on the grounds that it “[did] not 2 believe it would be efficient or useful for the parties for [the government] to provide 3 an excerpt of [its] declaration in advance of September 30.” Id. United explained 4 that the government’s 3.5-month delay in providing an agency declaration was 5 unreasonable. Ex. B, D. Schindler Aug. 28, 2018 Email at 1299.

6 United then informed the government that it intended to proceed with its 7 motion to compel but that it remained willing to work cooperatively on briefing 8 schedule. Id. On September 4, the government committed that it would provide its 9 portion of the joint stipulation by September 28. Ex. B, A. Likoff Sept. 4 Email at 10 1297. Upon further consideration, and in an effort to avoid a dispute, United told 11 the government on September 21 that it would refrain from proceeding with its 12 motion to compel until it received the agency declaration on September 28 and that, 13 if the declaration failed to address United’s concerns, United would provide its 14 portion of the joint stipulation during the early part of the week of October 1. Ex.
 15 B, D. Schindler Sept. 21, 2018 Email at 1296. United also stated that it would honor 16 a prior agreement to provide the government with 14 days in which to provide its 17 portion of the joint stipulation. Id.

18 On September 24, just four days before the government was supposed to 19 provide the agency declaration—indeed, just days before the government originally 20 committed to providing the entirety of its portion of the joint stipulation—the 21 government changed course and told United that it no longer intended to honor its 22 commitment to provide the agency declaration. See Ex. B, P. Freeborne Sept. 24, 23 2018 Email at 1296; Ex. A, United’s Mot. to Compel at 14. As a result, United told 24 the government that it would be proceeding with its motion to compel and would 25 send its portion of the joint stipulation later that day. Ex. B, D. Schindler Sept. 28, 26 2018 Email at 1294. Despite the government’s abrupt about-face, United honored 27 the government’s initial request for 14 days in which to provide the government’s 28 portion of the joint stipulation. Id. United also stated that, should the government bring a motion to stay, United “simply request[s] the same courtesy in scheduling we have afforded the government.” Id. Rather than affording United that courtesy, however, the government chose to wait 5 days before springing this ex parte application.

Both judges overseeing this case have repeatedly rejected the government’s attempts to avoid its discovery obligations simply because future rulings might impact the scope of discovery:

- “The Court encourages counsel to agree to begin to conduct discovery actively before the Scheduling Conference. At the very least, the parties shall comply fully with the letter and spirit of Rule 26(a) and thereby obtain and produce most of what would be produced in the early stage of discovery, because at the Scheduling Conference the Court will impose strict deadlines to complete discovery.” Order Setting Scheduling Conf. at 2 (Dkt. 219).
- “What I can tell you is that typically in this district we don’t save things like discovery motions until the district judge issues a scheduling order” Ex. D, Tr. of July 12 Hr’g at 1632 (line 24)–1633 (line 1).
- “[W]e tend not to halt discovery in the anticipation that [a party] may win their motion for partial summary judgment. . . . [W]e generally let the defendant proceed to address the allegations in the complaint through discovery and we don’t [] wait.” Ex. A, United’s Mot. to Compel at 14.
- “[United] has a right to . . . vigorously and quickly defend itself. . . . [G]iven the complexity of this case, again, I don’t think it’s inappropriate . . . to be moving quickly to try and gather information and prepare its defenses. . . . So, again, I wouldn’t want to delay the case and delay [United’s] ability to defend themselves.” Ex. E, Tr. of Feb. 8, 2018 Hr’g. at 1641 (lines 14–15), 1643 (lines 8–10), 1645 (lines 3–4).
- “[W]e’re back to a place that we were previously at with the United States. . . . I mean, you initiated the case; you knew the volume of the case; you knew the response that you would likely get from United; you are not new to this kind of litigation. So it was, you know, that the -- the volume of work involved in responding to discovery requests and

1 participating in this case was something the Government needed to kind 2 of assess before they filed the complaint in this action. And if it was a 3 situation where you knew that you were going to need a stay until 4 certain fundamental issues were resolved, that Stay Motion needed to 5 be filed a long time ago.” Ex. C, Aug. 16, 2018 Hr’g. Tr. at 1627 (lines 8–10), 1628 (lines 9–15).

6 United tried for months to work cooperatively with the government to 7 minimize the scope of the parties’ dispute, giving the government every opportunity 8 to address its deficient privilege assertions and provide an agency declaration. But 9 enough is enough.

10 United cannot be expected to sit idly by while the government attempts 11 unilaterally dictate the flow and scope of discovery. The government chose to bring 12 this lawsuit accusing United of fraud and is seeking significant damages. Yet it 13 continues to balk at the notion of allowing United to seek basic discovery. The 14 government’s ongoing “pocket veto” strategy violates the rules of this Court, and 15 the Federal Rules themselves. And the government is not exempt from those rules 16 because its work costs “taxpayers” money. When the government decides to become 17 a plaintiff pursuing a lawsuit, it is a litigant just like any other party. United likewise 18 is just like any other party, and is entitled to defend itself against allegations of fraud.

19 III. ARGUMENT

20 A. The Government Is Misusing the Ex Parte Process

21 The government has failed to demonstrate any basis for its ex parte 22 application, which is a disfavored exception to the rule that motions should be duly 23 noticed. In re Intermagnetics Am., Inc., 101 B.R. 191 at 193 (C.D. Cal. 1989). Such 24 applications “throw the system out of whack” by circumventing the usual procedures 25 and timetables designed to allow a fair and complete presentation of the issues before 26 the court. Id. (providing that ex parte applications “contravene the structure and 27 spirit” of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Local Rules, which are “intended 28 to provide a framework for the fair, orderly, and efficient resolution of disputes”);

1 Mission Power Eng'g Co. v. Cont'l Gas Co., 883 F. Supp. 488, 491 (C.D. Cal. 1995)
 2 (“The rules contemplate that regular noticed motions are most likely to produce a 3 just result” because they allow the opposing party a legitimate opportunity to prepare 4 an opposition). Ex parte applications also “impose an unnecessary administrative 5 burden on the court” by forcing it to address the movant’s request ahead of other 6 deserving litigants with duly noticed motions, and foist “an unnecessary adversarial 7 burden on opposing counsel who are required to make a hurried response under 8 pressure, usually for no good reason.” In re Intermagnetics, 101 B.R. at 193. Here, 9 the government is using the ex parte application process—an extraordinary 10 procedure that is “nearly always improper” and “rarely justified”—under truly 11 unremarkable circumstances to further delay having to fulfill its discovery 12 obligations. See In re Intermagnetics, 101 B.R. at 192; Mission Power, 883 F. Supp.
 13 at 490.

14 The type of “hybrid” ex parte application filed by the government here, which 15 technically provides notice to the non-moving party, is equally disfavored. See In 16 re Intermagnetics, 101 B.R. at 193; see also Mission Power, 883 F. Supp. at 490 17 (“[H]ybrid ex parte motions are inherently unfair, and they pose a threat to the 18 administration of justice” because “the parties’ opportunities to prepare are grossly 19 unbalanced”). Hybrid ex parte applications often are the result of “gamesmanship” 20 because the moving party may have spent days or weeks preparing its motion, while 21 the opposing party is afforded a single day to draft its opposition and “can rarely 22 make its best presentation on such short notice.” Mission Power, 883 F. Supp. at 23 490–91. The moving party must demonstrate both that there is actual urgency such 24 that it “will be irreparably prejudiced if the underlying motion is heard according to 25 regular noticed motion procedures” and that it is “without fault in creating the crisis
 28

1 that requires ex parte relief, or that the crisis occurred as a result of excusable
2 neglect.” Id. at 492.⁴ The government fails to meet its burden.

3 1. There is No Emergency That Warrants Ex Parte Relief

4 There is no emergency here. The government could have filed a properly 5 noticed motion to stay months ago, as this Court noted. See Ex. D, July 12, 2018 6 Hr’g. Tr. at 1631 (lines 20–23), 1635 (lines 16–19). It could even file one today and 7 be heard in advance of United’s contemplated November 6, 2018 hearing on the 8 motion to compel pursuant to an expedited briefing schedule. See Lombardi v.
9 Donovan, No. CV 11-4264-MWF (PLAx), 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 191881, at *1-2 10 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 19, 2012) (an ex parte application must “address why it [is] 11 necessary to file for extraordinary ex parte relief rather than proceeding by way of 12 [a] properly noticed motion . . .”). It took neither approach, instead choosing to force 13 United to respond to an ex parte motion within hours.

14 The issue that United raised in its Motion to Compel is hardly a new one.
15 United has sought for months to resolve or narrow the parties’ dispute over the 16 government’s improper assertions of the deliberative process privilege over more 17 than 21,000 documents. The parties have discussed this issue with the Court on 18 multiple occasions—including during an August 16 hearing in which this Court 19 expressly told the government that, if it believed a stay was necessary to resolve 20 certain issues, “that Stay Motion needed to be filed a long time ago.” Ex. C, Tr. of 21 Aug. 16, 2018 Hr’g at 1628 (lines 16–18). The government sought no such stay for 22 over 1.5 months, when it filed the instant motion. But “[e]x parte applications are 23 not intended to save the day for parties who have failed to present requests when 24 they should have.” In re Intermagnetics, 101 B.R. at 193. The government makes

27 ⁴ The court in Mission Power explained that, to demonstrate irreparable prejudice, 28 “it will usually be necessary to refer to the merits of the accompanying proposed motion, because if it is meritless, failure to hear it cannot be prejudicial.” Mission Power, 883 F. Supp. at 492. The government’s brief does not discuss the underlying legal standard for its motion to stay.

1 no attempt to explain why it chose to do nothing until 5 days after United sent the 2 government its portion of the Joint Stipulation. After many months of inaction, the 3 government cannot justify its decision to proceed ex parte.

4 2. There is No Irreparable Harm to the Government
 5 Necessitating Ex Parte Relief

6 A party proceeding ex parte must truly be threatened by immediate irreparable 7 harm. Indeed, “filing an ex parte motion . . . is the forensic equivalent of standing 8 in a crowded theater and shouting, ‘Fire!’ There had better be a fire.” Mission 9 Power, 883 F. Supp. at 492. Additionally, ex parte relief is not warranted when any 10 alleged crisis that might justify such relief is of that party’s own making. See 11 Lombardi, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 191881, at *1–2 (denying ex parte application to 12 stay because the alleged urgency was exclusively caused by the movant). The 13 government has not made a showing of any irreparable harm it faces, and any 14 urgency is the result of the government’s own doing.

15 The only harm the government identifies is that it will have to draft its portion 16 of the Joint Stipulation. This is hardly the equivalent of a “fire” warranting 17 emergency relief. Furthermore, although Local Rule 37–2.2 only required United to 18 give the government one week to provide its portion of the Joint Stipulation, United 19 agreed to give the government a full two weeks. This 14-day period was not a 20 product of United’s unilateral decisionmaking—it is the amount of time that the 21 government itself requested United allow it to respond. The government’s feigned 22 indignation at this time frame is baseless.

23 Moreover, the government’s claims of irreparable harm are belied by the fact 24 that the government, by invoking the privilege, has by definition already collected 25 and reviewed the documents at issue. The government’s current claim that the 26 documents—over which it has already asserted the deliberative process privilege— 27 are “extremely burdensome to review and produce,” merely corroborates United’s 28 suspicions that lawyers from the Department of Justice failed to consult with CMS

1 before (improperly) asserting the privilege themselves. Mem. at 4. To the extent it 2 must now re-review these documents, either the government has improperly invoked 3 the deliberative process privilege and now faces the (self-imposed) consequence of 4 that decision, or it has undertaken the requisite review and is merely attempting to 5 withhold the final declaration to shield these documents from United. It is only if 6 the government has failed to take the appropriate steps before asserting the privilege 7 that it faces any real burden.

8 Furthermore, there is no basis for granting ex parte relief because any 9 purported burden or harm facing the government stems from its inappropriate and 10 overly broad assertion of the deliberative process privilege and its repeated failure 11 to timely address these issues despite United first raising them in June. Having to 12 undertake the steps required to perfect assertions of privilege by providing an agency 13 declaration, Memorandum at 4—steps that it should have already undertaken—does 14 not constitute harm to the government. The government committed to providing 15 United with a draft of the agency declaration by the end of September before it 16 abruptly changed course.⁵ On September 24, just four days before the government 17 was supposed to provide the agency declaration, the government reneged on its 18 original agreement to provide the declaration and refused to provide a date by which 19 it will provide one. See Ex. B, A. Likoff Aug. 27, 2018 Email at 1300-01, P.
 20 Freeborne Sept. 24, 2018 Email at 1296. The government’s inability to provide the

 23 ⁵ The government’s assertion that United rejected the government’s proposal to 24 provide a “draft declaration regarding the privileged documents,” see Motion to 25 Stay, Dkt. 294-1 at 7, n.3, is simply untrue. United expressly requested that the 26 government provide a draft or excerpt of its forthcoming agency declaration, but the 27 government flatly refused. See Ex. B, A. Likoff Aug. 27, 2018 Email at 1300-01.
 28 (“[W]e do not believe it would be efficient or useful for the parties for us to provide an excerpt of our declaration in advance of September 30.”). The government also refused to provide any meaningful detail regarding what its declaration would look like or even what categories of documents it would cover. Id., D. Schindler Aug. 28 & 29, 2018 Emails at 1298-1300. The government now attempts to rewrite history and portray United as unreasonable for refusing to accept a proposal the government never made. This is no justification for the government’s inability to provide the required agency declaration.

1 agency declaration on September 28 as promised is inexcusable, especially 2 considering United first raised the deficiencies with the government's privilege logs 3 in June and has given the government ample opportunities to perfect its assertions 4 of deliberative process privilege in the intervening months. The government cannot 5 now rely on its own failure to procure its promised agency declaration to seek ex 6 parte relief.

7 B. The Government Has Demonstrated No Undue Burden
 8 Associated With Providing Its Portion of the Joint Stipulation

9 The government cannot plausibly argue that providing its portion of the Joint 10 Stipulation is unduly burdensome. The government cites no authority for its baseless 11 claim, and United is not aware of any. United's Motion to Compel does not seek to 12 compel the government to search for, collect, and review documents that it does not 13 have in its possession. The government has already reviewed and withheld over 14 21,000 documents solely on the basis of the deliberative process privilege, and thus, 15 absent the unjustified assertions of privilege, the government is prepared to produce 16 the documents at issue.

17 To invoke the deliberative process privilege, the Department of Justice should 18 have conferred with CMS before withholding over 21,000 documents spanning more 19 than a decade. Either the Department of Justice already has done this work, and its 20 arguments here are purely tactical, or the Department of Justice has not done this 21 work, despite clear case law requiring it to. Ex. A, Mot. to Compel at 23–24.

22 Despite the government's representation to this Court in August that it was 23 working with CMS to provide an agency declaration by the end of September, the 24 government still has yet to provide such a declaration. The government expressly 25 agreed to provide both the joint stipulation and agency declaration by September—26 and then abruptly reneged on this commitment. One possible explanation as to why 27 the government cannot get the required agency declaration from CMS is because the 28 agency is unwilling to sign-off on lawyers from the Department of Justice asserting

1 deliberative process privilege over more than 21,000 documents without first 2 seeking input from CMS. The government knows that its failure to obtain a 3 declaration from CMS fatally undermines its assertion of deliberative process 4 privilege. Again, this is not a sufficient basis on which to grant ex parte relief.

5 C. The Evidence the Government Is Withholding Is Directly Relevant 6 to Critical Issues In This Case

7 The government’s final point—that the materials it has withheld “lack . . .
 8 relevance to the issues that are germane in this case,” Memorandum⁶ at 8—is 9 meritless at best.

10 For one thing, the government fails to mention two of the three claims it is 11 pressing in this case. If the government truly believes that this is just an “FCA 12 action,” id., and wants to dismiss its common law claims, it is free to ask this Court’s 13 leave to do so. Until it does, United can (indeed, must) proceed with preparing a 14 defense against those claims.

15 The government is withholding evidence critical to that effort. The 16 government’s Payment by Mistake claim, for example, requires the government to 17 show that it “made [the relevant] payments under an erroneous belief which was 18 material to the decision to pay.” United States v. Mead, 426 F.2d 118, 124 (9th Cir.
 19 1970) (emphasis added). In other words, the government must actually prove what 20 its complaint alleges: that “[h]ad the United States known the truth, it would not 21 have paid such claims.” United States’ Am. Compl.-in-Partial Intervention and 22 Demand for Jury Trial (“Am. Compl.”), Dkt. 171 ¶ 360. For all the government’s 23 insistence that this case is “focuse[d] on United’s (not the government’s) state of 24 mind,” Memorandum at 8, the reality is that the government has put its own state of

 27 ⁶ References to “Mem.” refer to the United States’ Memorandum of Points and 28 Authorities in Support of Ex Parte Application for a Temporary Stay of Motion to Compel Discovery Pending Issuance of Rulings filed concurrently with its Motion to Stay.

1 mind squarely at issue. Having done so, it cannot complain that United seeks facts 2 that will shed light on what that state of mind was.

3 To the extent the government has addressed this issue at all, it did so in a 4 single paragraph of its reply brief on its Rule 16 motion. See Pls.’ Reply Mem. In 5 Supp. of Mot. Pursuant to Rule 16(b)(3) for Scheduling Order Modifying Discovery
 6 (“Rule 16 Reply”), Dkt. 278 at 14. It argued there that “United cannot plausibly 7 contend that CMS reviewed medical charts . . . of the many millions of beneficiaries 8 for which MAOs submitted diagnosis data and thereby acquired ‘knowledge’ of the 9 true health status of a given beneficiary before issuing a risk-adjusted payment to an 10 MAO for that beneficiary.” Id. But United need not make any such showing—it is 11 enough to show (and at the very least relevant) that CMS officials were aware that 12 United was not conducting so-called “two-way look chart reviews” and that a 13 substantial portion of codes industry-wide are insufficiently documented in medical 14 charts, yet continued to accept United’s bids and pay United for performing its 15 services. United seeks the discovery that will allow it to show that, even at the 16 granular level of individual codes, the government did not pay claims by mistake.
 17 Instead, it paid claims knowing full well that any particular code driving a payment 18 was quite possibly an unsupported one.

19 United also seeks discovery about how CMS responded when it actually knew 20 that specific codes were unsupported. CMS may not have “‘knowledge’ of the true 21 health status of” every beneficiary, but United is entitled to know what CMS did on 22 the occasions when it did have such knowledge. If CMS knew of a given beneficiary 23 whose true health status was different from that reflected in her diagnosis codes, and 24 yet nevertheless paid the MA plan with whom that beneficiary was enrolled based 25 on those diagnosis codes, then that would further undermine the government’s claim
 28

1 that “[h]ad the United States known the truth, it would not have paid such claims.”
 2 Am. Compl. ¶ 360.⁷

3 So, too, would evidence showing that CMS experts believed the agency was 4 required to pay MA plans based on at least some of their unsupported codes in order
 5 to avoid underpaying MA plans. We know with unusual certainty that such evidence 6 exists because the government has released some of it to a reporter in the past, when 7 doing so seemed to its advantage.⁸ In one document, for example, senior agency 8 officials explained that allowing MA plans to retain payments for some unsupported 9 codes “makes sense and from a technical point of view is the right thing to do” in 10 order to account for the presence of unsupported codes in CMS’s own data from 11 traditional Medicare. See Ex. B, FOIA Agenda at 1523 The government now claims 12 that this same document, and many others like it, are subject to the deliberative 13 process privilege. See Ex. B, APA Mem. Op. on Mot. to Supplement the 14 Administrative R. at 1570-72. But such materials are crucial to United’s defense, 15 because they tend to show that the government’s response to learning of unsupported

 17 ⁷ The government implicitly represents that no such evidence exists, and claims that 18 this Court “already recognized” at the motion to dismiss stage that CMS’s payment 19 system “automatically determine[s] payment amounts” when MA plans notify CMS 20 of an unsupported code. Mem. at 9. But this Court’s decision at the motion to 21 dismiss stage assumed (as it was required to do) that the complaint’s allegations were 22 true. Now that the parties are past the pleading stage, the government can no longer 23 rely on that assumption. And, indeed, in support of its Opposition to the 24 government’s Rule 16(b)(3) Motion, United submitted a declaration setting forth 25 evidence that CMS does not automatically process certain deletes because 26 submission of certain deletes required CMS officials to make affirmative decisions 27 about whether to accept, process, and reconcile these deletes. See Dkt. 274-1 at ¶¶ 28 8-9. In its Application to Stay, the government mischaracterizes United’s evidence as “vaguely describe[ing] what appear to be technical issues encountered by United in submitting deletes.” Mem. at 9 n.5. United’s evidence has nothing to do with “technical issues” but instead shows that CMS officials were affirmatively involved in reconciling unsupported codes, thus rendering the payment process far from automatic in all cases. The government may dispute that factual point, but United is entitled to discovery to test whether the government’s allegations and arguments are true.

⁸ CMS released the material in question after its adoption of a Fee-For-Service Adjuster for the Risk Adjustment Data Validation audits, at a time when some commentators were arguing that CMS was being overly generous to MA plans. The material helped to address that criticism by showing that basic actuarial principles required adoption of an adjuster.

1 codes would not have been—as DOJ’s litigation theory requires—to recoup all 2 payments.

3 The government also is withholding evidence that is directly relevant to its 4 Unjust Enrichment claim. For example, both Judge Collyer and the American 5 Academy of Actuaries have explained that if MA plans are required to return the 6 payments they receive based on unsupported codes, without accounting for the 7 presence of unsupported codes in the data CMS used to develop its per-code payment 8 amounts, the result would be “systematic underpayment, undermining the purpose 9 of the risk adjustment system.” Ex. B, APA Op. at 1360 (quoting regulatory 10 comments submitted by the American Academy of Actuaries). In deciding whether 11 United has been “unjustly enriched,” therefore, it plainly is relevant whether the rate 12 of unsupported codes in CMS’s own data is greater than, equal to, or less than the 13 equivalent rate in United’s submissions—and yet the government is refusing to 14 disclose the very data necessary to make that determination.

15 The withheld evidence is critical to United’s defense to the single remaining 16 False Claims Act count, too. Rather than attempting to address all of the ways in 17 which that is true in this extremely expedited filing, United focuses on just three.

18 First, the evidence is relevant to materiality. In its complaint, the government 19 alleged that when “CMS has actual knowledge about the specific invalid diagnoses 20 that were submitted for payment . . . Medicare recovers the associated 21 overpayments.” Am. Compl. ¶ 330 (emphases altered); see also id. ¶ 342 (alleging, 22 as basis for reverse false claim count, that United “knowingly and improperly failed 23 to delete in the RAPS system the invalid diagnoses . . . or knowingly and improperly 24 failed to otherwise return to the Medicare Program the overpayments based on the 25 invalid diagnoses”). In order to determine whether Medicare would have recovered 26 funds here, therefore, it is necessary (and certainly relevant) to determine whether 27 CMS officials would have concluded that “overpayments” existed at all.
28 (Obviously, if CMS concluded that the plan had not been overpaid, then it would not

1 have required the plan to return any payments.⁹) And for the reasons already 2 discussed above, that places directly at issue evidence about things like the presence 3 of unsupported codes in CMS's own data and CMS experts' views on the need to 4 pay MA plans based on some unsupported codes in order to avoid underpaying those 5 plans in violation of the "actuarial equivalence" mandate. Such evidence would tend 6 to suggest that CMS did not believe individual unsupported codes were material to 7 an MA plan's payment-related obligations.

8 Similarly relevant to materiality would be evidence about what steps CMS 9 took to determine whether MA plans had submitted unsupported codes, and what 10 CMS did if and when it learned that they had done so. Again, if CMS knew of MA 11 plans that were performing so-called "one-way" chart reviews, and yet took no steps 12 to determine what, if any, previously submitted unsupported codes the plans had 13 identified through the reviews, then that would tend to undermine the government's 14 argument that CMS believes every unsupported code results in an overpayment. It 15 would likewise undercut any suggestion that one-way reviews are improper or 16 fraudulent. And evidence about CMS's choice to adopt audit protocols under which 17 it would not recover all funds that had been paid based on unsupported codes (i.e., 18 the Fee-For-Service Adjuster) would likewise help to show that the government did 19 not believe that every unsupported code is material to payment.

22 ⁹ In its Reply on its Rule 16 motion, the government attempted to de-emphasize the 23 overpayment theory it had stressed in its complaint. It argued that its "Motion for 24 Partial Summary Judgment is based on . . . the duty to delete and repay arising from 25 contract and regulation," and "is not based on United's retention of an 26 overpayment." Rule 16 Reply 8 n.3. That distinction makes no sense. The False 27 Claims Act requires the government to prove "an obligation to pay or transmit 28 money or property to the Government." 31 U.S.C. §3729(a)(1)(G). If there has not been an "overpayment," then there is no "money or property" for United to "repay" to the government. But in any event, the government acknowledges that it has not "waive[d] the right to make that alternative argument [based on retention of an overpayment] if necessary." Rule 16 Reply 8 n.3. Even if there were merit in the government's distinction, therefore, United would still need to be preparing a defense in which it would show that it had not received "overpayments."

1 Second, the evidence is relevant because it will assist United in establishing 2 that United subjectively believed it was not required to delete every unsupported 3 code, without regard to the presence of such codes in CMS’s own data. Throughout 4 this litigation, the government has repeatedly described that interpretation of the 5 Medicare statute and administrative pronouncements as “absurd,” Rule 16 Reply at 6 8, “tortured,” United States’ and Relator Poehling’s Joint Notice of Motion and 7 Motion for Partial Summary Judgment (“Mot. for Partial Sum. J.”), Dkt. 234 at 24, 8 “unreasonable and unsupported,” id. at 4, and so forth. On that basis, it has urged 9 this Court to “reject United’s actuarial equivalence argument as an after-the-fact 10 attempt to justify its fraudulent conduct based on a tortured reading of a statutory 11 phrase.” Id. at 24. And there is every reason to think it will keep up that rhetoric 12 through summary judgment and, if it should come to that, before a jury. After all, 13 “the more unreasonable the asserted beliefs or misunderstandings are, the more 14 likely the jury will consider them to be nothing more than simple disagreement with 15 known legal duties.” Cheek v. United States, 498 U.S. 192, 203–04 (1991). But 16 having gone all-in on its “no reasonable person could possibly have thought that” 17 rhetoric, the government can hardly object to United seeking evidence to address the 18 simple question: Did any of the presumably reasonable people who work for CMS 19 share United’s belief?

20 The real reason the government objects to that question is not that it is 21 irrelevant, but that the answer may be devastating to its case. And the government 22 has suffered such an outcome before. In United’s complaint in the APA case, United 23 offered hypotheticals that showed how requiring MA plans to delete unsupported 24 codes without taking account of the presence of such codes in CMS’s own data 25 would result in underpayment and, therefore, violation of the “actuarial equivalence” 26 mandate. 42 U.S.C. § 1395w-23(a)(1)(C). The government responded there with 27 rhetoric only slightly more temperate than it has offered here: It claimed that those 28 hypotheticals were useless because they “simplify away” aspects of the risk

1 adjustment process that the government claimed were essential, such as “the fact that 2 [the risk adjustment] process utilizes a statistical regression to assign relative 3 weights to diagnoses (and other predictors of costs).” Defs.’ Mem. in Supp. of Mot.
 4 to Dismiss at 9, UnitedHealthcare Ins. Co. v. Azar, No. 1:16-cv-157-RMC (D.D.C.
 5 May 11, 2016), ECF No. 12-1. But that contention became quite awkward for the 6 government when it later came to light that the agency’s own Division of Payment 7 Validation had used materially identical hypotheticals to explain the need for a Fee-8 For-Service Adjuster to the agency’s senior leaders—and that the government had 9 (as Judge Collyer put it) “either omitted the documents [from the administrative 10 record] in error or because they are adverse to its current position.” Ex. B, APA 11 Mem. Op. on Mot. to Supplement the Administrative R. at 1569.¹⁰ There is every 12 reason to believe that the government is likewise withholding documents that “are 13 adverse to its current position”—and thus directly relevant to the case—through its 14 overly broad assertion of deliberative process privilege here.

15 Third, and relatedly, the evidence the government is refusing to turn over is 16 relevant to the objective reasonableness of United’s actuarial equivalence position.
 17 The government appears to argue that evidence about the objective reasonableness 18 of United’s position is beside the point because the False Claims Act is focused just 19 on “United’s . . . state of mind and what it knew at the time of the misconduct,” 20 Memorandum at 8, and a jury has not yet decided whether United held its current 21 position during the time in question. Even if the government were right about that, 22 United would still be entitled to discovery relevant to the objective reasonableness 23 of its interpretation, because United contends that it has held its present
 26

27 ¹⁰ United described the Division of Payment Validation’s hypotheticals at page 8 of 28 its Opposition to Plaintiff’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment.

1 interpretation all along—meaning that, even on the government’s view, it cannot 2 have been liable so long as that interpretation is objectively reasonable.¹¹

3 But in any event, the government is also wrong in its contention that 4 “objective reasonableness” is only a defense after a factfinder has already resolved
 5 what the defendant’s subjective state of mind was. The Supreme Court squarely
 6 rejected that position in Safeco Ins. Co. of America v. Burr, 551 U.S. 47, 70 n.20
 7 (2007), holding that that where (as in the False Claims Act) Congress has imposed 8 a “knowingly or recklessly” standard for liability, establishing the objective 9 reasonableness of a given legal interpretation provides an independent defense 10 without any need to determine the defendant’s “state of mind.” The Court reasoned 11 that “Congress could not have intended” to “treat . . . as a knowing or reckless 12 violator” a defendant “who followed an interpretation that could reasonably have 13 found support in the courts, whatever their subjective intent may have been.” Id.
 14 (emphasis added). That approach makes particular sense in the context of corporate 15 actors, who have no single “state of mind” but are instead made up of numerous 17 ¹¹ The government’s argument that United’s present interpretation is just “an after-18 the-fact attempt to justify its fraudulent conduct,” Motion for Partial Summary 19 Judgment, Dkt. 234-1 at 24, is not only a wholly unsupported assertion about a 20 disputed fact, but it is also implausible. Among other things, it ignores the fact that 21 United, through its trade association, has been making identical arguments since at 22 least 2009, the earliest payment year at issue in this case. In 2009, for example, the 23 trade group America’s Health Insurance Plans (“AHIP,” of which United was at the 24 time a member) submitted administrative comments on behalf of its members in 25 which it explained that CMS’s “emphasis on medical record documentation for MA 26 diagnosis data as ‘the key to payment’ fails to acknowledge that a comparable 27 evaluation of FFS medical record documentation error rates is critical to assessing 28 payment accuracy, because of the role both sources play in the risk adjustment methodology.” Decl. of David J. Schindler in Supp. of United’s Opp. to Pls.’ Mot. for Partial Summ. J., Ex. 28, Dkt. 254-2 at PageID# 4268-69. And by 2012, long before the allegations in this case were unsealed, CMS itself had agreed that assessing whether an overpayment existed depended on a comparison of the rate of unsupported codes in CMS’s Fee-For-Service data and the equivalent rate in an audited plan’s data. United’s present interpretation of the statute is a continuation of what United, other MA plans, and at times CMS itself have long understood.

 Indeed, if there is anyone who has developed an “after the fact” argument, it is the government, whose 2014 change of position Judge Collyer has already held constituted an “unexplained departure from prior agency policy.” Ex. B, APA Op.
 at 1376.

1 individuals who may disagree about the right answer to a given legal question facing 2 the company. So long as the corporation's actions are consistent with an objectively 3 reasonable interpretation of the law, Safeco holds, there is no need for a judge or a 4 jury to consider "evidence of subjective bad faith" on the part of some employees.
 5 Id.

6 The government has never addressed that core aspect of Safeco's holding.
 7 Indeed, in its Rule 16 Reply it argued that even if United's position is "objectively 8 reasonable," "there would remain a factual issue as to whether . . . the evidence 9 demonstrates that [United] actually knew of, deliberately ignored, or recklessly 10 disregarded the correct interpretation of the law." Rule 16 Reply at 10. That is the 11 exact argument that Safeco rejected. See Safeco, 551 U.S. at 70 n.20 ("To the extent 12 that [plaintiffs] argue that evidence of subjective bad faith can support a willfulness 13 finding even when the company's reading of the statute is objectively reasonable, 14 their argument is unsound.").

15 None of the handful of post-Safeco cases the government sought to rely on in 16 its Rule 16 Reply (after United no longer had a chance to respond) calls for a 17 different result.

18 Halo Elecs. Inc. v. Pulse Elecs., Inc., simply held that Safeco is inapplicable 19 in the specific context of calculating patent damages (after liability has already been 20 established without regard to whether the conduct was knowing or willful) because 21 pre-Safeco "precedents make clear that 'bad-faith infringement' is an independent 22 basis for enhancing patent damages" under the patent laws. 136 S. Ct. 1923, 1933
 23 n.* (2016). In the False Claims Act context, however, courts—including the Ninth 24 Circuit—consistently have recognized that Safeco's reasoning is fully applicable 25 whenever they have considered the question. See, e.g., United States ex rel.
 26 McGrath v. Microsemi Corp., 690 F. App'x 551, 552 (9th Cir. 2017); United States
 27 ex rel. Purcell v. MWI Corp., 807 F.3d 281, 284 (D.C. Cir. 2015); United States ex
 28 rel. Hixson v. Health Mgmt. Sys. Inc., 613 F.3d 1186, 1190 (8th Cir. 2010).

1 United States ex rel. Armfield v. Gills, another one of the cases the government
 2 cited, illustrates the point. See No. 8:07-CV-2374-T-27TBM, 2011 WL 13151974
 3 (M.D. Fla. Mar. 31, 2011). The government relied on that case for the proposition 4 that “even after Safeco, an objectively reasonable interpretation does not preclude a 5 finding of scienter if there is evidence ‘that the proffered interpretation is no more 6 than a post hoc rationalization developed by litigation counsel.’” Rule 16 Reply at 7 13 (quoting Armfield, 2011 WL 13151974, at *15). But citing Safeco, the court there 8 concluded precisely the opposite: It held that an objectively reasonable 9 interpretation “precludes a finding of actual knowledge, deliberate ignorance, or 10 reckless disregard of the truth or falsity of their certifications,” notwithstanding the 11 fact that “Relators present other evidence from which a reasonable jury could 12 reasonably infer that Defendants submitted claims in deliberate ignorance of whether 13 their certifications were true.” Id. at *16.

14 Finally, in United States v. Celgene Corp., the court recognized that “Safeco 15 . . . rejected the argument that ‘evidence of subjective bad faith must be taken into 16 account in determining whether a company acted knowingly or recklessly.’” 226 F.
 17 Supp. 3d 1032, 1051 (C.D. Cal. 2016) (citation omitted). It allowed the case to go 18 forward only because it “[d]id not think Celgene’s position was objectively 19 reasonable at the time of the alleged violation,” concluding that agency guidance had 20 “warned [Celgene] away from the view it took.” Id. at 1052. Here, of course, United 21 contends that its view was objectively reasonable, even when taking account of 22 agency pronouncements—and the evidence it is seeking from the government is 23 relevant to that precise question. See, e.g., United States v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 24 178 F. Supp. 3d 927, 963 (N.D. Cal. 2016) (holding, based on Safeco, that 25 “[e]vidence that [a government agency] or another pipeline operator had the same 26
 28

1 interpretation of a regulation as PG&E supports PG&E's defense that such 2 interpretation was objectively reasonable and therefore not a willful violation").¹²

3 IV. CONCLUSION

4 The government first asserted the deliberative process privilege on a privilege 5 log more than 6 months ago, and United expressly requested more than 3.5 months 6 ago that the government cure its deficient privilege assertions by, among other 7 things, providing an agency declaration. The Motion to Stay belies multiple 8 representations by the government over the past nearly two months—not only to 9 United, but also to the Court—that the Department of Justice was working with CMS 10 to develop such a declaration. The government chose to proceed ex parte without 11 demonstrating any legitimate basis for doing so and solely as a means to avoid doing 12 precisely what it represented it had been doing since August. The government's 13 pattern of refusing to comply with its discovery obligations, misrepresentations to 14 United and the Court, and unjustly reneging on agreements is troubling and 15 inexcusable. The Court should deny the government's Motion to Stay.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

[United to fill in after receiving the government's portion of the joint stipulation]

1 I. INTRODUCTORY STATEMENTS

2 A. United

3 The government is withholding vast quantities of highly relevant documents 4 based solely on unsupportable assertions of the deliberative process privilege. The 5 government has not remotely made the required showing that particular 6 documents are covered by that privilege. On the contrary, the government instead 7 has adopted boilerplate explanations for withholding literally thousands of 8 documents created over the course of more than a decade. Not only are those 9 threadbare descriptions inadequate to sustain the privilege, but many of them 10 undermine it, suggesting that the documents contain factual matters rather than 11 deliberations about significant agency decisions. Moreover, it is has become 12 apparent that the Department of Justice failed to consult with the relevant agency 13 before making its sweeping privilege assertions. For these reasons alone, the Court 14 should compel the production of these documents.

15 The government expressly committed to providing a declaration from the 16 Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (“CMS”) by the end of September—17 more than 6 months after producing its first privilege log and more than 3.5 months 18 after United’s request for such a declaration—claiming it would remedy these 19 deficiencies. Just days before it was supposed to provide the declaration, however, 20 the government reneged on its agreement and is now refusing to provide an agency 21 declaration until Judge Fitzgerald issues rulings on all four of the government’s 22 pending motions. The government is, yet again, improperly attempting to dictate 23 the flow of discovery in direct contradiction to Judge Fitzgerald’s standing order, 24 his comments during the scheduling conference, and repeated statements from this 25 Court that the government cannot unilaterally refuse to engage in discovery.

26 Even before the government’s abrupt about-face, the government was 27 unwilling or unable for months to provide any meaningful description of what its 28 declaration would look like or even the categories of documents it would cover,

1 claiming that doing so would not be “efficient or useful” before the end of 2 September. The government provided no meaningful details or assurances that it 3 could, or adequately would, support its expansive assertions of the deliberative 4 process privilege over many thousands of highly relevant documents. The 5 government outright refused to provide any detail regarding any of the individual 6 documents withheld, instead claiming in conclusory fashion that the no-longer-7 forthcoming declaration would explain how undisclosed categories of documents 8 are both “predecisional” and “deliberative.” The government’s described 9 declaration merely pays lip service to its privilege assertions and does not satisfy 10 its burden of demonstrating the applicability of the narrow, qualified deliberative 11 process privilege. As this Court has noted previously, the government chose to 12 bring this lawsuit, and it is improper for the government to ignore its discovery 13 obligations or hamstring United’s defense by withholding critical documents.

14 Even if the government’s assertions of privilege had merit (and they do not), 15 the privilege is a qualified one and is readily overcome here by United’s need for 16 these critical documents. As detailed below, these documents are directly relevant 17 to the government’s sole remaining False Claims Act claim (a reverse False Claims 18 Act claim), including to show that: CMS officials themselves believe that 19 conducting one-way reviews is proper; United did not receive an overpayment; 20 United did not knowingly and improperly retain an overpayment; and United’s 21 alleged failure to delete codes did not materially impact the government’s decision 22 to continue paying and contracting with United. These documents also are directly 23 relevant to the government’s two common law claims, Payment by Mistake and 24 Unjust Enrichment, to demonstrate both that (a) the government was not mistaken 25 at the time it paid these claims—rather it is DOJ that is mistaken in pursuing a 26 theory predicated on the notion that CMS somehow did not know that United was 27 performing one-way looks—and (b) United was never unjustly enriched. Finally, 28 the documents that the government is withholding are relevant to interpreting the 1 meaning of the ambiguous contractual and regulatory provisions on which the 2 government relies, as well as to damages.

3 The government is the sole custodian of this relevant discovery, so United 4 cannot obtain it from a third party. The government's motive for attempting to 5 shield these documents is transparent: the limited evidence in United's possession 6 thus far—some of which the Department of Justice attempted to assert the 7 deliberative process privilege over, despite having produced it in response to a 8 Freedom of Information Act request—directly supports United's position (among 9 others) that CMS officials shared its views that conducting one-way looks was 10 perfectly appropriate.

11 Therefore, because the government has failed to satisfy its burden of 12 substantiating its privilege claims, and because United's need for these highly 13 relevant and critical materials outweighs any interest the government has in non-14 disclosure, the Court should grant United's motion and compel the production of 15 all documents that the government is withholding solely on the basis of the 16 deliberative process privilege.

II. DELIBERATIVE PROCESS PRIVILEGE ASSERTIONS

A. United

1. Procedural and Factual Background

On November 17, 2017, the government filed a 166-page, 364-paragraph Amended Complaint-In-Intervention, alleging violations of the False Claims Act and two common law claims, Payment By Mistake and Unjust Enrichment, and seeking substantial damages and other remedies. On February 12, 2018, Judge Fitzgerald dismissed the government's three affirmative False Claims Act counts, leaving only a reverse False Claims Act count and the two common law claims.

United served its first document requests on the government in August 2017. Roughly 13 months later, the government has produced only approximately 47,600 documents but has withheld as privileged over 25,200 documents. See Exs. 1–7, United States' Privilege Logs Nos. 1–7.¹ Of those 25,200 withheld documents, the government has asserted solely the deliberative process privilege over approximately 21,400 documents.² And of those 21,400 documents, the government has only produced about 1,060 documents with redactions—meaning the government is withholding in full over 20,300 documents (95%) based solely on the deliberative process privilege. Id.

Rather than provide the requisite level of detail to sustain assertions of the deliberative process privilege, the government instead grouped these documents into incredibly broad categories on its privilege logs, often using identical descriptions for thousands of documents that span over a decade. None of these descriptions identifies a discrete policy decision, let alone a significant one, about

² The government has also asserted the deliberative process privilege in conjunction with other privileges over approximately 1,880 documents. Only approximately 1,980 documents out of the approximately 25,200 that the government is withholding do not involve the deliberative process privilege.

1 which any alleged deliberations took place. Nor do any of these descriptions 2 describe how the particular documents are part of the deliberative process. The 3 government has made it effectively impossible to challenge any particular 4 document because there are virtually no descriptions of how a particular document 5 was part of any predecisional or deliberative process. The below examples 6 highlight the significant flaws in these privilege logs, which are replete with 7 similarly overbroad categories. See id., United States' Privilege Logs Nos. 1–7.
8 The government is withholding:

- 9 • Approximately 6,400 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations 10 regarding RADV audit methodology.” These documents span from 11 September 2003 to July 2017.
- 12 • Approximately 3,320 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations 13 regarding calculation of RA error rate.” These documents span from 14 September 2004 to April 2017.
- 15 • Approximately 2,330 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations 16 regarding calculation of RA factors/model.” These documents span from 17 January 2003 to April 2017.
- 18 • Approximately 1,680 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations 19 regarding Advance Notice and/or Announcement and Call Letter.” These 20 documents span from January 2003 to April 2017.
- 21 • Approximately 1,390 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations 22 regarding FFS adjuster.” These documents span from January 2004 to 23 May 2017.
- 24 • Approximately 1,010 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations 25 regarding calculation of coding intensity adjuster.” These documents 26 span from November 2004 to March 2017.
- 27 • Approximately 970 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations 28 regarding RA supporting documentation requirements.” These documents span from January 2004 to May 2017.

- Approximately 660 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding” either “UHG RADV audits” or “non-UHG RADV audits.” These documents span from March 2004 to May 2017.
- Approximately 635 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding medical coding in support of RA payments.” These documents span from March 2004 to May 2017.
- Approximately 545 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding” “UHG RA activities” and “non-UHG RA activities.” These documents span from October 2004 to February 2017.
- Approximately 500 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding RA training materials.” These documents span from April 2004 to March 2017.
- Approximately 470 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding coding guidance.” These documents span from June 2005 to April 2016.
- Approximately 215 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding” “return of overpayments to CMS,” “RA overpayment analysis,” “recovery of overpayments,” “RA overpayment reporting requirements,” and “CMS overpayment policy.” These documents span from July 2006 to November 2015.
- Approximately 215 documents “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding coding intensity in MA Program.” These documents span from August 2006 to September 2015.

Even a cursory review of these categories demonstrates the impropriety of the government’s privilege assertions. It defies credibility to suggest that deliberations over what RA audit methodology to adopt spanned 14 years or that discussions of RA error rates are anything other than purely “factual” discussions that fall far outside the deliberative process. These same temporal defects and attempts to shield purely factual information are readily apparent in each of the categories above.

1 United sent a letter to the government on June 15, 2018 that, among other 2 things, detailed the numerous deficiencies in the government's privilege log 3 descriptions and expressed United's concern that the privilege assertions had been 4 made by lawyers at the Department of Justice without any input from any relevant 5 agency. Ex. 8, United's June 15, 2018 Ltr. United requested that the government 6 (1) revise its privilege logs to provide the requisite detail about the information 7 over which the government claimed the privilege applied, and (2) provide a formal 8 claim of privilege by an appropriate agency official who had personally reviewed 9 the relevant documents. Id. The government refused to re-evaluate or revise its 10 privilege log descriptions, instead insisting that United needed to revise its own 11 logs first—the exact type of “tit-for-tat” discovery that this Court has explained is 12 improper. See Ex. 9, United States' June 29, 2018 Ltr.; Ex. 10, Tr. of Aug. 16, 13 2018 Hr'g at 22:18–20.

14 Despite United's commitment during a July 30 meet and confer to revise its 15 privilege logs (as the government requested), the government still refused to 16 address its deficient privilege logs and claimed that it needed to see United's 17 revised logs before it would even consider whether and how to revise its logs. See 18 Ex. 11, United's Aug. 2, 2018 Ltr.; Ex. 12, United's Aug. 9, 2018 Ltr. The 19 government demanded that United explain how to revise the privilege log 20 descriptions, but United explained that it could not do so because it had no insight 21 into the substance of the underlying documents—though United did point the 22 government to case law in which government agencies provided descriptions that 23 were much more detailed than the government's descriptions here and yet were 24 still found to be insufficient by the court. See Ex. 11, United's Aug. 2, 2018 Ltr.; 25 Ex. 12, United's Aug. 9, 2018 Ltr. During the July 30 meet and confer, United 26 also reiterated its concern that the Department of Justice had asserted the 27 deliberative process privilege without first consulting CMS.

1 United sought an informal discovery conference before this Court because of 2 the government's continued refusal to take any steps to ameliorate its deficient 3 privilege descriptions or commit to providing an agency declaration, in addition to 4 the government's sudden refusal to continue producing privilege logs.³ The Court 5 recommended that the parties come up with mutually-agreeable categories for the 6 government's assertions of the deliberative process privilege. Ex. 10, Tr. of Aug.
7 16, 2018 Hr'g at 28:8–14.

8 Shortly after the conference, the government informed United that, at some 9 undetermined time in the future, it would provide an agency declaration that 10 purportedly would “perfect” the privilege assertions. See Ex. 13, United States’ 11 Aug. 20, 2018 Ltr. The government provided no meaningful information about the 12 substance of the forthcoming declaration, merely stating that it would explain why 13 the documents were predecisional and deliberative. Id. The government did not 14 share the categories it intended to use for the agency declaration, despite this 15 Court's recommendation that the parties develop mutually-agreeable categories.
16 Indeed, the government explicitly declined United's request to discuss the 17 categories as the Court had directed.

18 The government originally stated that it needed until September 30 to 19 provide the agency declaration—3.5 months after United first made its request for 20 such a declaration. United also suggested that the government provide an excerpt 21 of the declaration, which would allow United to assess whether the declaration was 22 likely to cure any of the deficiencies with the government's privilege assertions.
23 The government rejected United's suggestion because it “[did] not believe it would 24 be efficient or useful for the parties for [the government] to provide an excerpt of 25 [its] declaration in advance of September 30.” Ex. 14, A. Likoff Aug. 27, 2018

27 ³ During the conference, this Court explained that the government could not simply 28 refuse to engage in discovery, and the government shortly thereafter began producing privilege logs again—albeit with the same deficiencies as its prior privilege logs.

1 Email. Nevertheless, it “commit[ted] to providing UnitedHealth with a declaration 2 by September 30, 2018.” Id.

3 On September 24, just days before it was supposed to provide the agency 4 declaration, the government told United that it was no longer honoring its 5 commitment and now intended to wait until Judge Fitzgerald ruled on all four of 6 the government’s pending motions. See Ex. 14, P. Freeborne Sept. 24, 2018 7 Email. The government claimed that Judge Fitzgerald stated he needed to 8 determine the scope of discovery before this Court could rule on discovery 9 motions, and the government claimed—as it has on multiple occasions—that it 10 would not engage in discovery that might be obviated by future rulings. Id.
11 Contrary to the government’s strained interpretation of the September 17 hearing, 12 although Judge Fitzgerald stated he would likely need to confer with this Court 13 about relevant issues, he never stated that he had to issue rulings on all pending 14 motions before this Court could proceed to hear discovery disputes. See Ex. 15, 15 Tr. of Sept. 17, 2018 Hr’g at 54–56. In fact, he expressly stated that, under the 16 Local Rules, “the matter’s entirely up to [Judge Segal].” Id. at 54:14–17.

17 Both Judge Fitzgerald and this Court have repeatedly rejected the 18 government’s attempts to skirt its discovery obligations on the grounds that future 19 rulings might alter the scope of discovery. See, e.g., Ex. 16, Tr. of Dec. 18, 2017 20 Conf. at 13:16–14:2 (“[W]e tend not to halt discovery in the anticipation that [a 21 party] may win their motion for partial summary judgment. . . . [W]e generally let 22 the defendant proceed to address the allegations in the complaint through discovery 23 and we don’t [] wait.”); Ex. 17, United’s Rule 16 Opp’n at 20–21. Despite these 24 admonitions, the government has persisted with its “pocket veto” strategy. See, 25 e.g., Ex. 17, United’s Rule 16 Opp’n at 1, 5–6, 20–21. The government’s sudden 26 refusal to provide an agency declaration flouts Judge Fitzgerald’s and this Court’s 27 instructions and is nothing more than yet another brazen attempt to prevent United 28 from obtaining highly relevant and critical documents.

1 United has attempted to work cooperatively with the government to 2 minimize the scope of the parties' dispute. But United cannot be expected to 3 simply wait around for the government to engage in discovery whenever it sees fit.
4 The government chose to continue producing privilege logs with the same 5 deficiencies that United raised in its June 15 letter—logging over 18,500
6 documents after that letter—rather than address the issue. The government refused 7 to revise its privilege logs. It initially refused to provide an agency declaration, 8 then committed to providing one at the end of September, then refused to honor 9 that commitment. It refused to provide an excerpt of the declaration. It refused to 10 share with United what categories it planned to use. The government's unjust 11 refusals to cure the severe deficiencies with its assertions of the deliberative 12 process privilege, as well as its recent refusal to provide an agency declaration, 13 warrant the production of all materials that the government is currently 14 withholding solely on that basis.

15 a. Medicare Advantage and the Risk Adjustment Process

16 Under the MA program, see 42 U.S.C. § 1395w-21 et seq., private insurers 17 like United create insurance plans ("MA plans") in which Medicare-eligible 18 individuals may choose to enroll. Under traditional Medicare, CMS directly 19 reimburses health care providers using a "fee-for-service" ("FFS") payment system 20 in which providers submit claims to CMS for reimbursement for services 21 rendered. Under the MA program, CMS makes predetermined monthly payments 22 to MA plans that are based on a value attributed to each diagnosis code submitted 23 by medical providers, adjusted for demographic data. CMS is required to pay MA 24 plans in a manner that ensures "actuarial equivalence" with what Medicare pays 25 directly to care for similar patients in the Medicare program. 42 U.S.C. § 1395w-26 23(a)(1)(C)(i).

27 The FFS system covers millions of people, so it is unsurprising that the 28 associated data contains known errors, including diagnosis codes submitted by

1 providers for patients that do not actually have the illness or condition the 2 diagnosis code indicates. See, e.g., Ex. 18, APA Op. at 7 (“Humans being human, 3 diagnoses in healthcare records may be miscoded, inappropriately added, or 4 otherwise faulty by accident or mal intent.”). CMS sets the rates it pays to MA 5 plans according to what CMS itself pays under traditional Medicare to care for 6 patients with those same diagnosis codes—without attempting to correct for those 7 discrepancies by auditing the FFS claims data to confirm that the diagnosis codes 8 are properly supported by charts. See id. at 16–17. Thus, the existence of 9 beneficiaries whose provider assigned them a particular diagnosis code but who do 10 not actually have the associated condition is built into the payment model. Id. at 7 11 (“The risk adjustment model is built on unaudited [traditional Medicare] data . . .
12 which must contain errors.” (citing CMS Mot.)). Put differently, because CMS’s 13 payment model uses unaudited claims data from the traditional Medicare program 14 that contain numerous unsupported codes, the resulting payment amounts that 15 CMS sets for the MA program already account for the existence of unsupported 16 codes. See id. at 16 (“[T]he rates at which CMS pays Medicare Advantage 17 insurers are based on flawed data across the millions of people in traditional 18 Medicare.”).

19 If an MA plan were required to repay funds associated with every 20 unsupported code, without first determining whether the plan’s rate of unsupported 21 codes exceeded the rate already accounted for in the payment model, the 22 government would receive an unfair windfall: the government first would have the 23 benefit of lower payment rates that reflect the existence of its own unsupported 24 codes in the model, and then the government would lower its payments a second 25 time on the back end because of the presence of comparable numbers of 26 unsupported codes within the MA plan’s data that had already been accounted for 27 in the model. See, e.g., id. at 16–17 (“[W]ithout some kind of adjustment, . . .
28 Medicare Advantage insurers will be paid less to provide the same healthcare

1 coverage to their beneficiaries than CMS itself pays for comparable patients. This 2 inequity is inevitable because CMS sets Medicare Advantage rates based on costs 3 that are presumed, based on traditional Medicare diagnosis codes, to be associated 4 with particular health status information that is not verified in underlying patient 5 records.”). Id. at 17; see Ex. 19, United’s Mot. for Partial Summ. J. Opp’n at 12, 6 19, 22–26.

7 A recent decision from the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia 8 in another lawsuit involving United and the government holds conclusively that 9 CMS must take into account the errors in its own data before it can determine if 10 errors in an MA’s data gives rise to an overpayment.⁴ See generally Ex. 18, APA
11 Op. Put simply, there cannot be an overpayment unless the error rate in an MA 12 plan’s data exceeds the error rate in CMS’s own data. And if United’s error rate is 13 less than the government’s own error rate, then United likely has been underpaid.
14 See id. at 2, 9–10, 15–22.

15 At bottom, the government alleges that United submitted diagnosis codes to 16 CMS that United knew were unsupported and failed to correct, which—the 17 government alleges—resulted in United being overpaid. United seeks discovery 18 related to what the government knew about errors in United’s data and, more 19 importantly, what the government knew about errors in its own data, because the 20 latter bears directly on whether United was overpaid. However, the government is 21 withholding documents on these very topics by making improperly expansive 22 categorical assertions of the deliberative process privilege, despite (or perhaps 23 because of) the obvious importance of such documents to the claims and defenses 24 in this case. See supra at 21–30.

26 ⁴ United intends to submit appropriate briefing in the future related to the impact of 27 the APA decision. As relevant here, however, the APA decision (1) confirms 28 United’s theory that the government must account for errors in its own data when determining whether an overpayment exists, and (2) only bolsters United’s arguments about the importance of the discovery it seeks, which the government is attempting to shield.

1 2. *Argument

2 The government has failed to meet its burden of establishing the propriety of 3 its deliberative process privilege assertions. First, the privilege logs produced by 4 the government contain threadbare descriptions that do not establish whether any 5 document is predecisional and deliberative, and the agency declaration described in 6 broad strokes by the government—and which the government now refuses to 7 provide—will not cure these deficiencies. Second, even if the government were 8 somehow able to establish the privilege, United’s need for the information 9 outweighs any governmental interest in non-disclosure. Accordingly, this Court 10 should grant United’s Motion and order the production of all documents that the 11 government is withholding based solely on the deliberative process privilege.⁵

12 a. The Government Fails to Assert Properly the Deliberative
13 Process Privilege

14 The deliberative process privilege is a qualified privilege that applies only in 15 limited circumstances. See FTC v. Warner Commc’ns Inc., 742 F.2d 1156, 1161 16 (9th Cir. 1984). Courts construe the privilege strictly and narrowly. See N.
17 Pacifica, LLC v. City of Pacifica, 274 F. Supp. 2d 1118, 1122 (N.D. Cal. 2003)
18 (“[T]he [deliberative process] privilege is strictly confined within the narrowest 19 possible limits consistent with the logic of its principles.”) (internal quotation and 20 citation omitted); Cal. Native Plant Soc’y v. U.S. Env’tl. Prot. Agency, 251 F.R.D.
21 408, 410 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (“[C]ourts should construe the [deliberative process] 22 privilege narrowly and strictly.”). Although the privilege is designed to protect the 23 quality of agency decisionmaking by encouraging candid discussion among 24 policymakers and preventing premature disclosure of contemplated agency policies 25 or decisions, the narrow privilege applies only to documents that are both

26
27 ⁵ This Motion concerns only documents over which the government has asserted 28 solely the deliberative process privilege. The government, however, uses the same deficient privilege log descriptions to support its assertions of other privilege.
United reserves its right to challenge these assertions.

1 “predecisional” and “deliberative in nature”—not to purely factual material. See 2 Warner Commc’ns Inc., 742 F.2d at 1161; Hongsermeier v. Comm’r of Internal 3 Revenue, 621 F.3d 890, 904 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting N.L.R.B. v. Sears, Roebuck & 4 Co., 421 U.S. 132, 150 (1975)). The government has the burden of establishing 5 that the deliberative process privilege protects the materials at issue. See, e.g., N.
6 Pacifica, LLC, 274 F. Supp. 2d at 1121.

7 A document is considered “predecisional” if it was “prepared in order to 8 assist an agency decisionmaker in arriving at his decision.” Carter v. U.S. Dep’t of 9 Commerce, 307 F.3d 1084, 1089 (9th Cir. 2002) (holding that adjusted census data 10 held back based on accuracy concerns was not “predecisional” because it was 11 originally prepared for the purpose of dissemination to the public) (quotations and 12 citation omitted); Assembly of State of Cal. v. U.S. Dept. of Commerce, 968 F.2d 13 916, 920 (9th Cir. 1992) (noting that a “predecisional” document is one “prepared 14 in order to assist in an agency decisionmaker in arriving at his decision” and that 15 “documents deemed ‘postdecisional’ do not enjoy the protection of the deliberative 16 process privilege”) (quoting Sears, Roebuck & Co., 421 U.S. at 153).

17 A document or statement is deemed “deliberative” only if it was a direct part 18 of the deliberative process in that it makes recommendations or expresses opinions 19 on significant legal and policy matters. See Vaughn v. Rosen, 523 F.2d 1136, 1144 20 (D.C. Cir. 1975) (“[P]re-decisional materials are not exempt merely because they 21 are pre-decisional; they must also be a part of the agency give-and-take of the 22 deliberative process by which the decision itself is made.”); see also Allen v.

24 2007) (stating that the deliberative process privilege only applies to documents 25 relating to a larger policy formulation, not a single, trivial decision, such as 26 whether to fire a single employee). Indeed, “documents that merely reflect an 27 agency’s formal or informal guidelines or understanding of its own policies should 28 be produced, even if they are not final or official agency policy.” Nat’l

2 9632 PSG (MANx), 2015 WL 12684437, at *9 (C.D. Cal. 2015); see also Coastal 3 States Gas Corp. v. Dep't of Energy, 617 F.2d 854, 867 (D.C. Cir. 1980) (finding 4 deliberative process privilege not applicable to agency's interpretations of 5 regulations applied by auditors, noting that "an agency will not be permitted to 6 develop a body of 'secret law,' used by it in the discharge of its regulatory duties 7 and in its dealings with the public, but hidden behind a veil of privilege because it 8 is not designated as 'formal,' 'binding,' or 'final'").

9 The deliberative process privilege "must satisfy specific, formal 10 requirements for proper invocation," and courts impose heightened requirements 11 for asserting government privileges because "they effectively deny an adversary 12 the opportunity to inquire into perhaps dispositive areas of fact." Martin v. Albany
14 Schwarzenegger, No. CIV. S-06-2042 LKK/GGH, 2007 WL 2009807, at *3 (E.D.
15 Cal. July 6, 2007) (stating that the privilege "should be narrowly construed because 16 confidentiality may impede full and fair discovery of the truth.") To satisfy its 17 burden, the government must provide: "(1) a formal claim of privilege by the head 18 of the department possessing control over the requested information, (2) an 19 assertion of the privilege based on actual personal consideration by that official, 20 and (3) a detailed specification of the information for which the privilege is 21 claimed, along with an explanation of why it properly falls within the scope of the 22 privilege." Coleman v. Schwarzenegger, Nos. CIV S-90-0520 LKK JFM P, C01-23 1351TEH, 2008 WL 2237046, at *4 (E.D. Cal. & N.D. Cal. May 29, 2008)
24 (internal quotation and citation omitted). Neither the government's privilege logs 25 nor the vague description of the agency declaration—which the government is now 26 refusing to provide—satisfies this burden.

27 First, the privilege logs produced by the government are facially deficient.
28 They contain only "generalized allegations and self-serving, conclusory statements

1 regarding privilege” that are insufficient to sustain the deliberative process
2 privilege. See Dominguez v. Schwarzenegger, No. C 09-2306 CW (JL), 2010 WL
3 3341038, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 25, 2010). The basic document descriptions 4 provided by the government do not provide a “detailed specification of the 5 information for which the privilege is claimed, along with an explanation of why it 6 properly falls within the scope of the privilege.” Id. at *5. The government’s 7 privilege log descriptions set forth no specific policy decisions, let alone 8 significant policy decisions. See id. The descriptions fail to detail how any 9 document fits into the deliberative process. See, e.g., Cal. Native Plant Soc’y, 251 10 F.R.D. at 413 (“Conclusory statements that a document is deliberative do not 11 suffice”). Accordingly, the privilege log descriptions do not satisfy the 12 government’s burden of establishing that any documents are both predecisional 13 and deliberative. Id.; Dominguez, 2010 WL 3341038, at *5 (ordering production 14 of all documents over which the government invoked solely the deliberative 15 process privilege where government failed to identify specific policy decisions at 16 issue) (internal quotation and citation omitted)).⁶

17 These generic descriptions, which the government has applied in boilerplate 18 fashion to large swaths of documents spanning many years, do not adequately 19 describe the content of the purported deliberations and fail to provide the requisite 20 level of detail to establish that the documents properly fall within the scope of the 21 deliberative process privilege. For example, as previously set forth (supra at 5–6), 22 the government is using basic descriptions on its privilege logs such as: “RADV 23 audit methodology” (approximately 6,400 documents withheld); “calculation of 24 RA error rate” (approximately 3,320 documents); “Advance Notice and/or 25

26 ⁶ The government should not be withholding in full documents that contain factual 27 (or other) materials that do not qualify for this narrow privilege. This does not 28 appear to be the case, however, considering the government is withholding in full approximately 95% of documents over which it is asserting solely the deliberative process privilege and thus is only redacting approximately 5% of these documents.

1 Announcement and Call Letter” (approximately 1,680 documents); “FFS adjuster”
2 (approximately 1,390 documents); “UHG RADV audits” or “non-UHG RADV
3 audits” (approximately 660 documents); “UHG RA activities” and “non-UHG RA 4 activities” (approximately 545 documents); and “RA training materials” 5 (approximately 500 documents). Many of these categories, such as the calculation 6 of the error rate in the government’s own data, the calculation of the RA factors in 7 CMS’s payment model, and UHG and non-UHG RADV audits, describe “[p]urely 8 factual material that does not reflect deliberative processes” and to which the 9 deliberative process privilege does not apply—as this Court has already 10 recognized. See Warner Commnc’ns Inc., 742 F.2d at 1161; Ex. 20, Tr. of July 12, 11 2018 Hr’g at 64:24–65:3 (“[T]he deliberative process privilege . . . applies to 12 things that . . . really reflect deliberations as opposed to a factual finding.”). Yet 13 the government is withholding in full nearly 95% of the documents over which it is 14 asserting solely the deliberative process privilege.

15 Furthermore, these broad categories span extended periods of time—some as 16 many as over 14 years—that undermine any notion that all of the documents 17 grouped in the category are both predecisional and deliberative. Coupled with the 18 basic privilege descriptions, the protracted time periods do not identify a specific 19 significant policy decision or provide any insight into how the documents are 20 deliberative. For example, the government is withholding approximately 1,390 21 documents spanning from January 2004 to May 2017 “reflecting internal agency 22 deliberations regarding FFS adjuster.” This description fails to detail any specific 23 significant policy decision related to the FFS adjuster—such as the government’s 24 decision in February 2012 to adopt a FFS adjuster—and the “FFS adjuster” 25 description is so generic that it prevents United from assessing whether any 26 particular document is predecisional. Nor does this basic description provide any 27 insight into how any documents were part of the deliberative process.

28

1 As another example, the government is withholding nearly 6,400 documents
2 spanning from September 2003 to July 2017 “reflecting internal agency 3 deliberations regarding RADV audit methodology.” This description similarly 4 fails to explain what significant policy decision related to the RADV audit 5 methodology is at issue or how the documents were part of the agency decision-6 making process. RADV audits began taking place in 2008, so using such a broad 7 description for a nearly 14-year period provides no detail about how any 8 documents are predecisional or even how the decision spanned 14 years. The 9 government’s assertion of privilege over approximately 1,680 documents 10 “reflecting internal agency deliberations regarding Advance Notice and/or 11 Announcement and Call Letter” from January 2003 to April 2017 suffers from the 12 same infirmities. The description does not even identify which Advance Notice, 13 Announcement, or Call Letter—documents CMS issues multiple times per year—14 is at issue, let alone how any particular document fits into the deliberative process.

15 The government’s privilege log deficiencies also prevent United from 16 properly assessing whether any purported deliberations were ultimately adopted by 17 the agency. This is problematic because ultimate adoption by the agency would 18 obviate any claim of deliberative process privilege. See Nat’l Res. Def. Council v.
19 U.S. Dep’t of Defense, 388 F. Supp. 2d 1086, 1098 (C.D. Cal. 2005) (“Even if the 20 document is predecisional at the time it is prepared, it can lose that status if it is 21 adopted, formally or informally, as the agency position on an issue or is used by 22 the agency in its dealings with the public.” (quoting United States v. Rozet, 183 23 F.R.D. 662, 666 (N.D. Cal. 1998)).

24 The agency declaration that the government has now refused to provide—25 after refusing for months to provide it, finally committing to provide it by the end 26 of September, and then reneging on that commitment—would not have cured the 27 flaws in the government’s privilege assertions. As an initial matter, it appears that 28 lawyers from the Department of Justice were asserting the deliberative process

1 privilege without first consulting any agency official. This is particularly troubling 2 because “a government attorney is precisely who should not be asserting a 3 government privilege.” See Chao v. Westside Drywall, Inc., 254 F.R.D. 651, 657
4 (D. Or. 2009) (emphasis added); Martin, 780 F. Supp. at 933 (“Only by mandating 5 that an accountable executive official invoke a governmental privilege can the 6 courts be confident that the privilege is responsibly asserted based on agency goals 7 and policies, and is not abused for litigation purposes.”). If the Department of 8 Justice failed to consult first with the agency before asserting the deliberative 9 process privilege over nearly 20,000 documents, that alone is sufficient to order 10 production of all materials withheld as it demonstrates a complete failure to follow 11 the requirements of asserting the deliberative process privilege. See Pac. Gas & 12 Elec. Co. v. United States, 70 Fed. Cl. 128, 143–44 (2006) (finding the 13 government’s assertion of the deliberative process privilege prior to obtaining a 14 supporting affidavit from a government official “procedurally deficient”).

15 Moreover, even if the government eventually provides one, the Court should 16 be especially wary of any new agency declaration that serves more as a post-hoc 17 defense of the Department of Justice’s privilege assertions than a truly independent 18 claim of privilege by the agency. The government’s extremely broad-brushed 19 description of the agency declaration it now has refused to provide offers no 20 assurance to the Court or United that the government will give sufficient detail to 21 tie thousands of documents that span over a decade to a specific agency decision 22 and adequately detail how they were part of the deliberative process. See Cal.
23 Native Plant Soc’y, 251 F.R.D. at 413 (finding agency declarations insufficient to 24 establish deliberative process privilege where the “statements do not assert the 25 detail required to show the individual documents’ role in the decision making 26 process”). Indeed, it is difficult to imagine how an agency declaration could 27 contain sufficiently detailed information to explain how approximately 21,400 28

1 documents all meet the exacting standard required to assert the deliberative process 2 privilege.

3 Furthermore, United cannot identify particular documents to challenge or 4 submit for potential in camera review by this Court because of the government's 5 failure to provide adequate information in support of its privilege assertions. The 6 government has argued that it would be prohibitively burdensome to conduct a 7 document-by-document review and provide individualized descriptions. But the 8 government should have conducted such a review prior to asserting the deliberative 9 process privilege—and, if it did not, the assertions are improper. This Court 10 should not be forced to assume a burden that the very party asserting the privilege 11 is unwilling to undertake. Accordingly, because this Court “ha[s] insufficient 12 information from [the government] as to why disclosure should not be permitted,” 13 it is likewise “ill-equipped to make any intelligent decisions as to discovery during 14 an in camera inspection.” See Miller v. Pancucci, 141 F.R.D. 292, 301 (C.D. Cal.
15 1992) (“[S]hould the threshold requirements not appear in the papers, the privilege 16 assertion will be overruled in its entirety and complete disclosure will be ordered.
17 No in camera inspection will occur.”).

18 In sum, it has been over 13 months since the government received United's 19 first set of document requests and over 3.5 months since United first raised issues 20 related to the government's fundamentally flawed privilege logs and asked for an 21 agency declaration. Despite United's requests, and despite having a protracted 22 amount of time to cure these deficiencies and provide a sufficient agency 23 declaration, the government has failed to meet its burden of substantiating its 24 privilege claims. Consequently, the government has waived its right to assert the 25 deliberative process privilege over these materials. See, e.g., Dominguez, 2010 26 WL 3341038, at *6 (finding waiver in light of a party's “repeated failures to 27 substantiate their claims of privilege” and ordering production of all information 28 over which the deliberative process was the sole privilege asserted). The Court

1 should therefore order the production of all documents that the government is 2 withholding solely on the basis of the deliberative process privilege. See, e.g., 3 Coleman, 2008 WL 2237046, at *5 (ordering production of materials withheld 4 under the deliberative process privilege where neither the government's privilege 5 logs nor the agency declaration established the privilege).

6 b. United's Need for These Relevant Materials Outweighs Any 7 Government Interest in Non-Disclosure

8 Even if the government had properly invoked the deliberative process 9 privilege—which it has not—the privilege is qualified and can be overcome by a 10 sufficient showing of need outweighing the harm that might result from disclosure.
11 Warner Commc'ns Inc., 742 F. 2d at 1161. The Ninth Circuit has set forth four 12 non-exclusive factors that courts consider in balancing the competing interests: 13 “(1) the relevance of the evidence; (2) the availability of other evidence; (3) the 14 government's role in the litigation; and (4) the extent to which disclosure would 15 hinder frank and independent discussion regarding contemplated policies and 16 decisions.” Id. (citations omitted).⁷ These factors all weigh heavily in favor of 17 requiring disclosure.

20 21 ⁷ Some district courts in Ninth Circuit have considered additional factors, such as 22 the interest of the litigants, and ultimately society in accurate judicial fact-finding, 23 and the seriousness of the issues involved. See e.g., N. Pacifica, LLC, 274 F. Supp.
24 2d at 1122; United States v. Irvin, 127 F.R.D. 169, 173 (C.D. Cal. 1989)
25 (enumerating the factors and collecting cases). The parties and society have a clear 26 interest in accurate fact finding, and the government's fraud allegations and 27 magnitude of damages sought are serious. See, e.g., Irvin, 127 F.R.D. at 173 28 (“The desirability of accurate fact finding argues in favor of disclosure (as it would in every case).”); United States v. Berkeley Heartlab, Inc., No. 9:14-cv-00230-RMG, 11 (D.S.C. June 19, 2017) (concluding in an intervened case involving alleged violations of the federal False Claims Act and federal Anti-Kickback statute, “The Court has no trouble finding that . . . the litigation is serious.”). Other courts also consider the public's interest in government transparency, which weighs heavily in United's favor here. See, e.g., Reino De Espana v. Am. Bureau of Shipping, No. 03CIV3573LTSRLE, 2005 WL 1813017, at *12 (S.D.N.Y., Aug.
1, 2005).

1 i. The Evidence the Government Is Withholding Is Critical
2 to the Claims and Defenses

3 As an initial matter, the standard for relevance in litigation is low, and the 4 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure afford parties broad discovery of relevant 5 evidence. See, e.g., In re Allergan, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 14-CV-02004, 2016 WL
6 5929250, at *2 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 5, 2016) (“The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 7 provide for broad factual discovery. A party ‘may obtain discovery regarding any 8 non-privileged matter that is relevant to any party’s claim or defense and 9 proportional to the needs of the case” (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1)). The 10 documents United has requested are crucial for its defenses to the misconduct that 11 the government has charged. As detailed below, they bear directly on the 12 remaining reverse False Claims Act count, the government’s common law claims 13 of Payment by Mistake and Unjust Enrichment, resolving the meaning of the 14 ambiguous contractual provisions and regulatory requirements at issue, and 15 potential damages.

16 False Claims Act. To prevail on its reverse False Claims Act count, the 17 government must establish that United “knowingly conceal[ed] or knowingly and 18 improperly avoid[ed] or decrease[d] an obligation to pay or transmit money or 19 property to the Government.” 31 U.S.C. § 3729(a)(1)(G); see id. § 3729(b)(3) (an 20 “obligation” is “an established duty, whether or not fixed, arising from . . . the 21 retention of any overpayment”). Evidence about the presence and extent of 22 unsupported codes in CMS’s own data speaks directly to whether United was 23 overpaid because if CMS’s rate of unsupported codes was greater than United’s, 24 there cannot have been any overpayment. Indeed, as Judge Collyer held, requiring 25 United to delete unsupported codes without CMS doing the same in its data would 26 result in a systematic underpayment and violate the statutory (and contractual) 27 requirement of actuarial equivalence. See, e.g., Ex. 18, APA Op. at 15–21; Ex. 19
28 Partial Summ. J. Opp’n at 22–23, 44–46. United has issued document requests

1 seeking evidence on this very point. For example, United has sought the 2 production of documents related to (1) the Risk Adjustment error rate in CMS's 3 data, (2) a RADV Medicare FFS adjuster, and (3) the RADV audit methodology.
4 E.g., RFPs 1, 2, 6, 7. These categories of documents are relevant to, among other 5 things, whether United was overpaid merely because it may have received 6 payments based on some unsupported codes. The government, however, is 7 asserting solely the deliberative process privilege over approximately 3,320
8 documents related to the "calculation of RA error rate," approximately 1,390
9 documents related to the "FFS adjuster," and approximately 6,400 documents 10 related to the "RADV audit methodology." See Exs. 1–7, United States' Privilege 11 Logs Nos. 1–7.

12 The evidence that United has been able to obtain thus far supports its 13 arguments and undermines the government's theories—and highlights not only the 14 relevance of the documents the government is shielding, but also the overbreadth 15 of the government's deliberative process privilege assertions in this case. For 16 example, the government astonishingly attempted to shield documents in this 17 litigation that it previously produced in response to a FOIA request, with 18 redactions. See Ex. 21, Presentation from Division of Payment Validation; Ex. 22, 19 FOIA Agenda; Ex. 23, Tavenner Dep. Tr. 83:10–84:10; Ex. 24, Grant Dep. Tr.
20 293:12–23. These documents contain notes from an internal CMS presentation 21 about the need to account for CMS's own error rate in determining overpayments 22 and state that adopting an FFS adjuster "from a technical point of view is the right 23 thing to do" and would "put[] us in the best position to withstand litigation 24 challenges." See Ex. 22, Agenda at CMS0006201; see also Ex. 21, Presentation 25 from Division of Payment Validation. Evidence like this is crucial to showing that, 26 contrary to the government's core contention, United was not overpaid merely 27 because it failed to delete and may have received payment based on unsupported 28 codes. As another example, Jeffrey Grant (a CMS official who oversaw the 1 creation of the risk adjustment program and one of only two CMS officials 2 deposed in this case to date) testified that, assuming the coding intensity 3 adjustment fully offsets any activities that an MA plan undertakes to code more 4 completely, if a plan were to audit a little as twenty-five percent (or even less) of 5 its members' charts and delete unsupported codes it found—without CMS deleting 6 such codes in the FFS data—the MA plan would be underpaid. See Ex. 24, Grant 7 Dep. Tr. at 274:22–277:25; Ex. 19, United's Partial Summ. J. Opp'n at 44–45.

8 Yet this is the exact type of evidence the government is seeking to prevent 9 United from obtaining through its overly expansive assertion of the deliberative 10 process privilege. In fact, Judge Collyer rejected the government's over-expansive 11 stance on the deliberative process privilege and entered these very same documents 12 into the administrative record. Ex. 25, APA Mem. Op. on Mot. to Supplement the 13 Administrative R. at 12. The government's attempt to invoke the deliberative 14 process privilege on these documents, despite having produced them in response to 15 a FOIA request, illustrates its aggressive and overly broad assertions of this limited 16 privilege over documents at the heart of this case.

17 The documents the government is withholding on the basis of the 18 deliberative process privilege also are relevant to scienter. The government's 19 interpretations of the requirements imposed on MA plans by CMS statutes, rules, 20 regulations, and guidance, as well as contracts with MA plans—requirements the 21 government now claims United violated—shed light on both the meaning of those 22 requirements and whether United knew that conducting one-way reviews violated 23 them. See, e.g., Ex. 26, United's Mot. to Strike Opp'n at 17–18; Ex. 17, United's
24 Rule 16 Opp'n at 12–14. Proving that United improperly retained overpayments 25 requires the government to show that United knew about unsupported codes simply 26 by virtue of its one-way looks and that United knew that unsupported codes 27 necessarily resulted in overpayments. See 31 U.S.C. § 3729(a)(1)(G); see also In 28 re. Pharm. Indus. Average Wholesale Price Litig., 254 F.R.D. 35, 42–44 (D. Mass.

2008) (ordering the production of several documents protected by the deliberative process privilege because government knowledge could be relevant to both scienter and falsity under the False Claims Act). That, in turn, requires the government to prove United knew that there was something improper or fraudulent in conducting one-way chart reviews and that United was objectively unreasonable in its belief that there was no overpayment so long as the rate of its unsupported codes did not exceed CMS's. See, e.g., Ex. 26, Mot. to Strike Opp'n at 17–18; Ex. 17, United's Rule 16 Opp'n at 12.

Documents showing the government's interpretation of MA plans' obligations under applicable statutes, regulations, guidance documents, and contractual requirements thus bear directly on the objective reasonableness of United's interpretations. See id.; Safeco Ins. Co. v. Burr, 551 U.S. 47, 69–71 & n.20 (2007) (stating that where multiple “objectively reasonable” interpretations of a provision exist, “it would defy history and current thinking to treat a defendant who merely adopts one such [objectively reasonable] interpretation as a knowing or reckless violator”); United States ex rel. McGrath v. Microsemi Corp., 690 F. App'x 551, 552 (9th Cir. 2017) (applying Safeco to scienter requirement of False Claims Act); see also United States v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 178 F. Supp. 3d 927, 963 (N.D. Cal. 2016) (holding that evidence of government's or other regulated entities' interpretation of regulations was relevant to reasonableness of defendant's interpretation, regardless of whether defendant actually knew of that evidence). Additionally, evidence that United's beliefs were reasonable would help a factfinder assess whether United actually held its asserted beliefs: “[T]he more unreasonable the asserted beliefs or misunderstandings are, the more likely the jury will consider them to be nothing more than simple disagreement with known legal duties,” and, conversely, the more reasonable the beliefs are, the more likely the jury is to believe that they were genuinely held. Cheek v. United States, 498 U.S.

2 interpretations are thus relevant even to United’s subjective beliefs.

3 Many of the document requests United has issued also relate to this 4 evidence. For example, United is seeking discovery related to: regulations, rules, 5 guidance, or other pronouncements setting forth the government’s standards for 6 evaluating the accuracy of diagnosis codes reported by MA plans; coding for 7 purposes of evaluating the accuracy and adequacy of diagnoses reported by MA 8 plans; and CMS instructions and guidelines regarding coding. See RFPs 3, 43, 44.
9 But the government is asserting solely the deliberative process privilege over 10 nearly 2,600 documents related to the “RA supporting documentation 11 requirements,” “medical coding in support of RA payments,” “RA training 12 materials,” and “coding guidance.” These types of documents are highly relevant 13 to scienter and should be produced. See Berkeley Heartlab, Inc., No. 9:14-cv-14 00230, 2017 WL 3608241, at *2 (D.S.C. Aug. 22, 2017) (ordering production of 15 certain documents subject to the deliberative process privilege in part because of 16 their relevance to defendants’ argument that they lacked the requisite scienter 17 under the False Claims Act).

18 The limited evidence United has been able to obtain thus far supports 19 United’s argument that its interpretations were objectively reasonable. For 20 example, Jeffrey Grant testified that he believed an MA plan’s submission of an 21 unsupported code would be improper only if it was making the “very specific 22 submission of a very specific data element . . . that [it] know[s] is wrong.” Ex. 24, 23 Grant Dep. Tr. at 321:21–23. He stated that performing one-way reviews that add 24 diagnosis codes, without looking at whether previously-submitted codes lack such 25 support, would not create the requisite knowledge. Id. at 322:18–323:15. He 26 further testified that he did not believe it was “improper” or “fraud” for an MA 27 plan to perform such one-way reviews. Id. at 307:11–310:16.

Documents related to the government's knowledge of United's and other MA plans' coding practices are also relevant to Escobar's "demanding" materiality standard, which "look[s] to the effect on the likely or actual behavior of the recipient of the alleged misrepresentation." See United Health Servs., Inc. v. United States ex rel. Escobar, 136 S. Ct. 1989, 2002 (2016). The government must show that any alleged misrepresentation was material to the government's decision to continue paying and contracting with United. See, e.g., Ex. 17, United's Rule 16 Opp'n at 14. Additionally, evidence of how the government responded to knowledge that other MA plans were engaging in chart reviews similar to the chart reviews at issue in this litigation goes directly to the materiality of any alleged wrongdoing by United. See id. at 2003; United States ex rel. Worthy v. E. Me. Healthcare Sys., No. 2:14-cv-00184-JAW, 2017 WL 211609, at *24 (D. Me. Jan. 18, 2017) (evidence regarding government's prior investigations of similar allegations and prior actions to prevent the same type of conduct at issue relevant for materiality purposes); see also United States ex rel. Scharff v. Camelot Counseling, No. 13-cv-3791, 2016 WL 5416494, at *17 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 28, 2016) (complaint failed to allege sufficient facts to support materiality where it did not allege whether the government refused to reimburse clinics that engaged in conduct similar to defendant's).

Many of the documents United seeks and over which the government has asserted the deliberative process privilege are related to the government's knowledge of MA plans' activities. For example, United has requested documents related to the government's knowledge as to whether MA plans were (1) validating the accuracy of diagnosis codes, (2) deleting unsupported diagnosis codes, and (3) looking both ways. See RFPs 17–19. The government, however, is asserting solely the deliberative process over approximately 545 documents related to "UHG RA activities" and "non-UHG RA activities." United should be entitled to these

1 documents to help demonstrate that any alleged wrongdoing by United was not 2 material.

3 The government has previously argued that the automated nature of the MA 4 payment system renders diagnostic codes automatically material and that United 5 thus should not be entitled to discovery related to CMS's views on and treatment 6 of the submission of unsupported codes. But United contests this assertion and has 7 demonstrated that certain deletes involve much more than merely submitting 8 "delete files" to CMS—they involve affirmative decisions by CMS officials to 9 process the deletes and adjust prior payments based on CMS's reconciliation of the 10 submitted data. E.g., Ex. 17, United's Rule 16 Opp'n at 15–16. In fact, United has 11 requested documents related to the processes, policies, guidance, and procedures 12 relating to deletes and the government's refusal or failure to process deletes 13 submitted by MA plans. See RFP Nos. 2-2–2-4. But the government is 14 withholding approximately 190 documents related to the "return of overpayments 15 to CMS," "submission of deletes," "processing of overpayments," and "proposed 16 overpayment recovery process" (and many additional documents in similar 17 categories). The government should not be allowed to withhold documents that are 18 relevant to this issue, including CMS's internal deliberations about whether to 19 process deletes, and whether CMS viewed unsupported codes as inherently 20 improper.

21 Common Law Claims. The documents that the government is shielding also 22 are directly related to its two common claims, Payment by Mistake and Unjust 23 Enrichment. See, e.g., Ex. 17, United's Rule 16 Opp'n at 8–9. Payment by 24 Mistake requires the government to prove what it knew and what it would have 25 done differently if it had the knowledge it claims it lacked. If the government was 26 aware that United conducted one-way reviews or that other MA plans did the 27 same, but continued to pay and contract with United or those other MA plans, that 28 would tend to undermine any claim by the government that it paid United under a

1 mistaken understanding of applicable circumstances. United should be permitted 2 to investigate whether the government in fact labored under a misunderstanding 3 and what actions it took, if any, as a result of that alleged misunderstanding. Thus, 4 United has issued document requests related to the government's knowledge of 5 MA plans' activities, many of which the government appears to be withholding.
6 See, e.g., id. at 14. These and other documents related to the government's 7 knowledge of United's and other MA plans' activities contain information at the 8 heart of the government's Payment by Mistake claim.

9 The documents that the government is withholding are also highly relevant 10 to the its Unjust Enrichment claim. For example, documents United seeks related 11 to overpayments under the False Claims Act, bear on whether United was entitled 12 to receive money from the Government and whether retention of those funds was 13 improper. See, e.g., id. at 10–11. As United has argued previously in this case—14 and as Judge Collyer held in the case before her—requiring plans to repay funds 15 associated with unsupported codes, without first determining whether the plan's 16 rate of unsupported codes exceeds the rate implicit in the payment model, would 17 confer an unfair windfall on the government. See Ex. 18, APA Op.; Ex. 19, 18 United's Partial Summ. J. Opp'n at 26. Evidence showing that the government's 19 recovery in the instant litigation would produce that inequitable effect would 20 support United's defense that it has not been unjustly enriched. See, e.g., Ex. 19, 21 United's Partial Summ. J. Opp'n at 2, 19. Therefore, the government is hampering 22 United's ability to defend against the Unjust Enrichment claim by withholding 23 documents that are directly relevant to these issues. See supra at 5–6.

24 Contractual and Regulatory Ambiguity. Furthermore, the documents that 25 the government is withholding are relevant to interpreting the meaning of the 26 ambiguous contractual and regulatory provisions on which the government relies.
27 The regulatory provisions invoked by the government do not state that an MA plan 28 is required to delete all codes it allegedly determines to be unsupported, regardless

1 of the rate of unsupported codes in CMS's own data on which its payments are 2 based, or that it is overpaid every time it receives a payment associated with an 3 unsupported code. See Ex. 19, United's Partial Summ. J. Opp'n at 26–46; Ex. 17, 4 United's Rule 16 Opp'n at 16–17. At a minimum, extrinsic evidence is necessary 5 to determine the meaning of these provisions. Additionally, extrinsic evidence is 6 necessary to resolve the meaning of the ambiguous contractual provisions at issue.
7 See Ex. 19, United's Partial Summ. J. Opp'n at 43–46; Ex. 17, United's Rule 16 8 Opp'n at 16–17. Even if the language of the contracts otherwise appeared to 9 support the government's position, the Court still should “consider evidence of 10 course of dealing, trade usage, or course of performance” to determine whether 11 that meaning is, in fact, ambiguous. See Mohave Valley Irrigation & Drainage 12 Dist. v. Norton, 244 F.3d 1164, 1166 (9th Cir. 2001).

13 Damages. Finally, many of the documents the government is withholding 14 are relevant to potential damages calculations. Documents related to errors in 15 CMS's data and the calculation of a FFS Adjuster, for example, bear directly on 16 the existence and extent of damages in this matter. Any calculation of damages 17 that failed to take into account the prevalence of unsupported codes in CMS's data, 18 which the FFS Adjuster attempts to approximate, would grossly overestimate any 19 actual injury suffered by the government. See Ex. 19, United's Partial Summ. J.
20 Opp'n at 26–27. But the government is withholding over 4,700 such documents 21 that span a 13.5-year period. See supra at 5.

22 In sum, the government has asserted the deliberative process privilege over 23 thousands of documents that are central to the remaining False Claims Act count, 24 both common law claims, the meaning of the contracts and regulatory provisions 25 upon which the government relies, and potential damages. These documents are 26 not simply relevant—they are critical to United's ability to defend itself in this 27 case. Thus, this factor weighs heavily in favor of disclosure.

28

1 ii. The Government Is the Sole Custodian of This Critical 2 Evidence

3 The availability of comparable evidence from sources other than the 4 government is “perhaps the most important factor in determining whether the 5 deliberative process privilege should be overcome.” N. Pacifica, LLC, 274 F.
6 Supp. 2d at 1124. This factor imposes a high bar for the government: even if some 7 related evidence may be available elsewhere, the availability of evidence from 8 other sources will not suffice unless the evidence is “comparable.” See Cal. State
9 Foster Parent Assn. v. Wagner, No. C 07-05086 WHA, 2008 WL 2872775, at *5 10 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (finding that this factor “weigh[ed] heavily in favor of disclosure” 11 where plaintiffs claimed the state had violated a statute and sought “detailed 12 analyses completed by . . . the agency responsible for the enforcement” of the 13 statute, even though “some of the factual information contained in the analyses” 14 might be available elsewhere).

15 United cannot obtain the crucial evidence described above from other 16 sources. The government is not only the best and most authoritative source of 17 information about its own knowledge and interpretations of MA requirements—it 18 is the sole custodian of that information. Even if other sources for this evidence 19 existed (and they do not) “the quality and persuasiveness of such evidence w[ould] 20 be substantially inferior to that produced by the agency charged with enforcing and 21 administering the programs at issue in this litigation.” See id. This factor—22 arguably the most important—also weighs heavily in favor of disclosure.

23 iii. The Government Plays a Significant Role in this 24 Litigation

25 It is difficult to imagine how the government could play a more significant 26 role in this litigation, having affirmatively chosen to file a lawsuit of this scope and 27 magnitude after a five-year investigation. See, e.g., Berkeley Heartlab, No. 9:14-28 cv-00230-RMG, 11 (D.S.C. June 19, 2017) (finding the government’s role significant where it government filed a complaint-in-intervention in False Claims Act matter); cf. Wagner, 2008 WL 2872775, at *6 (noting that, “[o]bviously, as defendant, the government plays a prominent role in this litigation”). The government affirmatively elected to place its internal deliberations, knowledge of MA plans’ activities, and interpretations of applicable regulatory, statutory, and contractual MA requirements directly at issue, and it would be unfair for the government to pursue its claims while shielding relevant evidence behind the deliberative process privilege. See N. Pacifica, 274 F. Supp. 2d at 1124 (stating that the government’s decisionmaking process ‘is not swept up into the case, it is the case.’”) (quoting Irvin 127 F.R.D. at 174); see also Fed. Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Giancola, No. 13 C 3230, 2015 WL 5559599, at *6 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 18, 2015) (stating that as a plaintiff, the government played a “considerable role” in the case and that it would be unfair if the government could advance its claims by concealing relevant evidence behind a government privilege). Accordingly, this factor weighs heavily toward disclosure.

iv. Any Governmental Interest in Non-Disclosure Is Sufficiently Protected by a Protective Order

The risk that disclosure of the documents would chill agency deliberations is minimal because there is a protective order in place. Courts have repeatedly found that protective orders adequately safeguard the government’s interest in non-disclosure. See, e.g., In re McKesson Governmental Entities Average Wholesale Price Litig., 264 F.R.D. 595, 602–03 (N.D. Cal. 2009) (holding that the protective order in place would sufficiently protect the government’s interest); Noble v. City of Fresno, No. 1:16-cv-01690, 2018 WL 1381945, at *9 (E.D. Cal. Mar. 19, 2018) (same).

The protective order in this case—which both parties negotiated and agreed to and which this Court approved—sufficiently protects any government interest in non-disclosure. The government may designate documents “Confidential” or

1 “Attorneys’ Eyes Only” if it is concerned about the documents being disclosed 2 outside of this litigation. See Ex. 27, Protective Order ¶¶ 6, 8–13, 21–23. In 3 addition, “[e]xtremely confidential and/or sensitive” documents that the 4 government appropriately designates “Attorneys’ Eyes Only” are not even 5 permitted to be shared with United personnel, including in-house counsel. See id.
6 at ¶¶ 9, 22. Thus, the protective order provides adequate protection over the 7 documents that the government is withholding, such that producing them would 8 not threaten the deliberative process. Therefore, this factor, like all the others, 9 weighs heavily in favor of disclosure.

10 In sum, all four of the factors set forth in FTC v. Warner weigh in favor of 11 disclosure. Thus, even if the government had properly invoked the deliberative 12 process privilege (which it has not), the privilege would be overcome in this case 13 because United’s need for the documents outweighs the government’s interest in 14 non-disclosure.

15 B. Government

17 III. PROPOSED RESOLUTION/CONCLUSION

18 A. United

19 The Court should compel the production of all approximately 21,400 20 documents that the government is withholding solely on the basis of the 21 deliberative process privilege. The government’s basic privilege log descriptions 22 are plainly deficient and fail to demonstrate how any document is both 23 predecisional and deliberative. The agency declaration described by the 24 government does not cure these deficiencies. The government has had months to 25 rectify these fundamental defects but has failed to do so. And now, the 26 government has outright refused to honor its commitment to provide an agency 27 declaration by the end of September.

1 Furthermore, even if the government had met its burden of establishing the 2 applicability of the deliberative process privilege, United's need for these vital 3 documents outweighs any interest the government might have in non-disclosure.
4 The government's inappropriately expansive view of the deliberative process 5 privilege stems from its desire to prevent United from obtaining discovery that is 6 critical to the claims and defenses in this case—including the government's only 7 remaining False Claims Act count, its common law claims, and potential damages.
8 The government is the sole custodian of this evidence. Having chosen to bring a 9 case of this magnitude and to place these purportedly deliberative materials 10 directly at issue, the government cannot now hide behind a narrow, qualified 11 privilege to prevent United from obtaining materials it needs to fully defend itself.

DECLARATION OF DAVID J. SCHINDLER

I, David J. Schindler, hereby declare as follows:

1. I am a partner at Latham & Watkins LLP, the law firm which represents Defendant UnitedHealth Group Incorporated and its affiliated entities named as Defendants in this action (collectively, "United"). I submit this Declaration in support of United's Motion to Compel the United States to Produce Documents. I have personal knowledge, information, or belief of the facts stated herein and, if called as a witness, I could and would testify competently thereto.

2. Attached as Exhibit 1 is a true and correct copy of the United States' first privilege log, dated March 30, 2018, which was produced during the course of this litigation.

3. Attached as Exhibit 2 is a true and correct copy of the United States' second privilege log, dated May 4, 2018, which was produced during the course of this litigation.

4. Attached as Exhibit 3 is a true and correct copy of the United States' third privilege log, dated June 1, 2018 and revised August 27, 2018, which was produced during the course of this litigation.

5. Attached as Exhibit 4 is a true and correct copy of the United States' fourth privilege log, dated June 29, 2018 and revised August 27, 2018, which was produced during the course of this litigation.

6. Attached as Exhibit 5 is a true and correct copy of the United States' fifth privilege log, dated August 20, 2018 and revised August 27, 2018, which was produced during the course of this litigation.

7. Attached as Exhibit 6 is a true and correct copy of the United States' sixth privilege log, dated August 24, 2018 and revised August 27, 2018, which was produced during the course of this litigation.

1 8. Attached as Exhibit 7 is a true and correct copy of the United States’ 2 seventh privilege log, dated September 26, 2018, which was produced during the 3 course of this litigation.

4 9. Attached as Exhibit 8 is a true and correct copy of a June 15, 2018
5 letter from David W. Rowe of Latham & Watkins LLP to Paul Perkins of the 6 Department of Justice.

7 10. Attached as Exhibit 9 is a true and correct copy of a June 29, 2018
8 letter from Justin Draycott of the Department of Justice to David W. Rowe of Latham 9 & Watkins LLP.

10 11. Attached as Exhibit 10 is a true and correct copy of a transcript excerpt 11 from an August 16, 2018 telephonic discovery conference before the Honorable 12 Suzanne H. Segal in this litigation.

13 12. Attached as Exhibit 11 is a true and correct copy of an August 2, 2018 14 letter from David W. Rowe of Latham & Watkins LLP to Paul G. Freeborne of the 15 Department of Justice.
